Do you know a single one of these PROSTITUTE'S TECHNIQUES FOR PRODUCING SEXUAL ECSTASY in their clients?

They know, for example:

The best way of all to make an "impotent" man hard as a rock again—even when everything else has failed.

The "one-girl, one-man orgy".

The "orgasm drug"—so incredibly effective that even experienced call girls gasp at the effect it gives their customers when they first use it.

The "easy-as-falling-off-a-log" position, that makes a man's active intercourse with them last for an hour or more.

The "waterloo", which can often bring a girl an extra $50 a trick.

Three ingenious little tricks that vastly increase a man's sensitivity during oral sex.

How prostitutes develop muscular control in their vagina which enables them to be far tighter than the average bride.

The "irresistible" sex act that excites even the prostitute so much that she is carried away to orgasm.

And dozens more! All perfected by women whose entire livelihood depends on being the best sexual partner the richest men in the world can buy at any price!

AND NOW RELEASED TO YOU FOR THE
FIRST TIME — TO READ FROM COVER TO COVER WITHOUT RISKING A PENNY!

Yes, this is your invitation to sit down with nine of the most sexually-experienced women in the world, and let them tell you frankly, bluntly and completely the real facts about sex that you could learn nowhere else!

No punches are pulled in this startling book! Not a single detail of each one of these nine girls' case histories is omitted!

Most of these girls service the richest and most successful men in the world. But one of them is a common street whore. All together, they give you—for the first time—the full-range of American prostitution... from the Park Avenue penthouses to the back street alleys.

Each of these girls, however—rich or poor—$10 a trick or $200—is far more intelligent than the average prostitute. They have a keen understanding of why they got in the trade... what really motivates their day-to-day encounters with their customers, other girls, and their own pimps... the economics of the life... their own, often strange "kicks"... and exactly what deep personal needs will probably keep them in it for the rest of their lives!

All have eye-opening surprises to give you on the previously-forbidden subject of high-pay sex! And here are just a few of them...

How prostitutes "crawl right inside their customer's skin". Make themselves feel what the man's penis feels. Know exactly when he is becoming so excited that he is on the verge of orgasm—so they can simply shift "rhythm" to prolong intercourse before that orgasm.

How prostitutes protect themselves against venereal disease with a common product they can buy in any drug store for pennies.

Why most prostitutes prefer oral sex. Why relatively few non-prostitutes know how to perform it effectively. Why it is something that must be learned—and why most women (especially those who try hardest) never master the simple basic trick at all.

Dozens of variations on oral sex, fully explained—one of which excites far more men than any other sexual act they can ever engage in.

What specialties prostitutes perform, for which they can charge extra money.

How prostitutes manage to let certain customers beat them, without being hurt in the process.

What Puerto Rican girls will do, quite naturally, that even ordinary prostitutes will not perform without a huge bonus.

What prostitutes say about the difference in size in men's penises, and why they believe it is absolutely not important to sexual enjoyment.

Tricks prostitutes reserve for customers who ask them to teach them something "brand-new".

Why most prostitutes receive marriage proposals almost every week.
And what they do for the men in return.

What prostitutes do with the skin of their body—their entire body—that drives their customers wild.

What is the number one position in intercourse that most men want with a prostitute.

The number one mistake that most wives make with their husbands in bed, that provides three-quarters of the call girl's trade.

How prostitutes can tell exactly what a man wants them to do, without his having to ask for it.

What one $100-a-night call girl calls the most important technique of all—that turns on a man's mind as well as his body.

Why many men would rather pay a call girl $100 than $25.

Why many men who have perfectly adequate sex at home, with all its variations, still go to call girls when they become successful.

How prostitutes make four-letter words become sexually-exciting to men again—where the same words would simply bore them if their own wives or girl friends would speak them.

Why many clients of prostitutes actually masturbate before they come to see them.

What kind of man needs a prostitute so badly that she practically "owns" him. So badly, indeed, that they give the girls stock tips, and send them presents at Christmas and on their birthday.

A list of weird clients, and what they want the girls to do.

Why some men hire call girls to pose as their wives — and for what kind of occasions.

The promise a girl can make that gets twice as much money out of a man—and for which she actually does nothing.

How girls get men to have orgasms by insulting them in the right way.

Why some girls must have pimps. What they do for them that they do not do for even the richest of their customers. And—surprisingly enough—the disservice the pimp performs for them that keeps the girls coming back to them for their entire lives.

Why prostitutes say they can tell how good an ordinary woman's sex life is, at a glance.

How prostitutes feel the first time they sell themselves—nine different interpretations.

How a call girl proves to a customer that she really likes him—over and above performing any kind of sex act with him.

Why certain call girls really dig the men they go with. And why they think prostitution is the "finest possible way in the world" of relating to them.

How many times a day does the average high-class call girl see her men. And how many times a day does she actually have orgasms with them.

The one act most prostitutes will not let a customers perform with them. But that almost any ordinary woman would be glad to do.

Why some men like prostitutes to make love to them in the same way that a man would make love to a girl. And how prostitutes do this. What it means when a man asks a girl to "do all the work".

How call girls get their men to throw away all their ordinary sexual hang-ups and incompetencies.

Why most call girls believe that every part of a man's body is an erogenous zone, if you only know how to treat it.

How call girls make a new customer feel completely relaxed... don't give him a chance to focus on his nervousness... make sure that before he knows it, he'll be responding passionately to their touch.

How prostitutes make a man's penis especially tingle during several different variations of the sex act.

What the girls do to completely cut out their monthly period. So that they need never lose a single day's income.

How their own husbands actually get some prostitutes started.

Stories a girl makes up when she doesn't want to tell a customer the truth about her life. And how he can tell she's lying.

The types of props high-class call girls have ready in the apartment, for any kind of sexual yearning.

The ice-cube special. And why most girls consider it extremely dangerous.

The one sex act—and there is only one—that the girls call "juvenile!"

Why two or three men will visit a girl at the same time. What she usually thinks of this. And exactly what they all do.

Weird kicks that prominent men demand from the girls. For example, the man makes the girl service him in front of a crowd. The man who must call his wife at the critical moment. And many, many more.

RECORDS

Aficionados of the opera will be pleased at the new rendition of Bizet's Carmen released by Angel. The original orchestral score of this work was only recently discovered at the Opera Comique, and the present recording is faithful to the original 1875 production. Grace Bumbry as Carmen is superb; her performance brings out the true dramatic qualities of Bizet's work. Mirella Freni as Micaela and Jon Vickers as Jose offer subtle and moving interpretations.

Beverly Sills is hardly more delightful in person than on her new album, Beverly Sills Sings Mozart and Strauss (ABC). With emotional depth where called for, and much vocal flair and brilliance, Sills tears off Richard Strauss' "Amor" and "Breit über mein Haupt," plus three Mozart arias. A delight from start to end, with the London Philharmonic Orchestra led by Aldo Ceccato.

Negotiating expertly the romantic complexities of Berlioz' songs, Colin Davis, conducting the London Symphony Orchestra, has added another triumph to his Berlioz readings. Berlioz songs (Philips), impresses with the voices of Sheila Armstrong, Josephine Veasey, Frank Patterson and John Shirley-Quirk, especially in the major work, "Les Nuits d'Été."

The discography of modern choral art music has been significantly enhanced by the appearance of a new Angel record featuring Vaughn Williams' two previously unrecorded works, Sancta Civitas and Benedicte. Sancta Civitas is an introspective work of high structural integrity. The offering is balanced by the suggestion of military marches heralded by trumpets in Benedicte. Although this is a first recording, the London Symphony Orchestra and the Kings College and London Bach Choirs make this disc a strong contender for future critical acclaim.

One of the few living organists to have played the complete organ works of Bach, William Moul in concert is heard on an unusual and fascinating recording of organ selections by Bach and others. A Baroque Recital (Ars Nova/Ars Antiqua) was made on location at the St. Louis Priory, using a rare organ built by Austrian Gregor Hradetzky. Toccata and Fuge in D Minor by Bach takes our vote as an exquisitely dramatic work.

Wagnerian sopranos swim into favor and disappear, but Kirsten Flagstad remains the standard of excellence. Her Tristan und Isolde (Seraphim) is an abridged version of the 1952 recording but the highlights that are included make operatic history still. Heard with the Norwegian artist are Thebom, Fischer-Dieskau and the Philharmonia Orchestra led by Furtwängler.

The guitar is rooted in Spain, and its flowering is Andres Segovia. It is Segovia who raised the instrument above its folk trappings, and inspired great modern composers to devote their talents to it. At least indirectly, Segovia is also at the base of the electric guitar phenomenon in America and the plugged-in set will find much of interest on The Guitar and I (Decca). One side contains autobiographical recollections about his 60-year marriage to the guitar; the other is the maestro's performance of some guitar exercises and studies.

Thanks to CRI and its policy of re-releasing important recordings of contemporary music, you can now get your own copy of the original cast recording of the powerful 1964 Off Broadway revival of Marc Blitzstein's musical classic for the stage, "The Cradle Will Rock." Written and composed in a style inspired by the team of Brecht and Weill, it was this work, considered controversial at the time, that established Blitzstein as one of our more important contemporary composers. Among the cast of then unknowns who worked in perfect ensemble to bring The Cradle Will Rock to full bloom was Jerry Orbach, the star of "Promises, Promises."

Rogers & Hart Revisited Vol. 2 (Crewe) is the latest in the "revisited" series produced by Ben Bagley, and it is one of the best to date. A contemporary cast including Bobby Short, Blossom Dearie and Gloria DeHaven deliver such evergreens as "Blue Moon," "Bye and Bye" and "Tree In the Park," all from the '20s and '30s.

Impersonator David Frye will never be listed among the president's favorite comedians. Especially not if the man in the White House listens to Frye's latest and most hilarious LP, Radio Free Nixon (Elektra). Frye's realistic impersonations include, besides Nixon, Lyndon B. Johnson, Spiro Agnew and Nelson Rockefeller, to mention just a few, as he gives the President a thorough going over in skits such as "The Dick Nixon Show" and a soap opera, "As the Country Burns."

Getting back on the charts with a real clout is Barbra Streisand and her album Stoney End (Columbia). With a standout rendition of Laura Nyro's tune for the title song, plus "Free The People" and "Maybe," Streisand is in great form.

A rare treat that we never expected to hear came to our attention recently and brings a solid recommendation from us for any and all who love music. Classical ragtime music, played as it was written, has finally been released in the form of Scott Joplin Piano Rags played by Josua Rifkin (Nonesuch). The all time classic "Maple Leaf Rag" starts off this happy album that includes "The Entertainer," "Fig Leaf Rag" and the gorgeous "Euphonic Sounds."

Detroit has produced many a good sound in the last decade and some of the finest come from the Temptations. Sky's The Limit (Gordy) is their latest album and it is an unique as well as sensatonal experience. "Just My Imagination," which has already been to the top of the charts leads off this all new list of songs that includes a nine and one half minute song, "Can't Nothing Be Love But Love" and a twelve and one half minute song called "Smiling Face Sometimes."

Swing is alive and well and recorded in stereo. Benny Goodman has just released an album Benny Goodman Today (London) was recorded live at a 1970 concert in Stockholm, one stop on the European tour Goodman made last winter with the first big band he's had in eight years. The King is still swinging with a great band, new of course, that plays his kind of music with plenty of excitement. All in all this is first rate Goodman.

Randy Burns and The Sky Dog Band (Mercury) is an exciting album of original rock material. Burns is backed by a creative and tight band which lends color to his lyrics. Standouts include "Life's Begun" and "To the Women in My Life," the latter number complimented by the fine dobro work of David Bromberg.

With hit after hit to their credit, the Jackson 5 have released another LP called Maybe Tomorrow (Motown). The music in this one has a tendency to be as sentimental as the lyrics have been in the past, but the boys have a good control over the material and they sound as lively and bright as ever. They sing the Crest's hit "16 Candles" plus a number of tunes authored for, if not by them as, "Never Can Say Goodbye" and "I Will Find A Way."

BOOKS

Queenie (Arbor House) is a novel and a girl by Hortense Calisher, called by some "America's Colette." Whether so or not, Queenie is a gas, a gag, a beautiful put-on of a sex-aggerated girl who says, "I don't want to drop out of things; I want to drop up." Here is a pretty nymph in search of sex. You'll not soon forget Queenie.

Much has been written about the Reproductive Biology Research Foundation, the creation of Dr. William Masters and Mrs. Virginia Johnson, the physician-psychologist team in St. Louis. Now appears the first person account of a couple who underwent, apprehensively but successfully, the Masters-Johnson treatment. Sex and the Married Couple (Coward-McCann) is a poignant and sometimes hilarious account written by Joan and Harold "K." The husband comments, "The idea of sexual signals is one of the greatest things we learned . . . sex signals completely open up the world of pleasure." For more tips, read the book.

The current controversy between the civil rightists and those who advocate wire-tapping and no-knock entry into homes forms a pertinent scene for appearance of The Confession (Wm. Morrow and Co.). This is the autobiographical account of Artur London's abduction, the physical abuse, the systematic breaking of his will and personality, and the final confession and "trial" during a purge of highly-placed Jews during the Stalin-Beria era in the 1950s. Beautifully written, with a translation by Alastair Hamilton, The Confession reaches its climax makes its best point when London returns to Prague in 1968. At the moment Soviet tanks are entering the city to crush the Dubcek regime, he hears attacks against Jews as fomenters of the liberation movement.

COMPUTERIZED SEX CULTS!

by Lang Reade

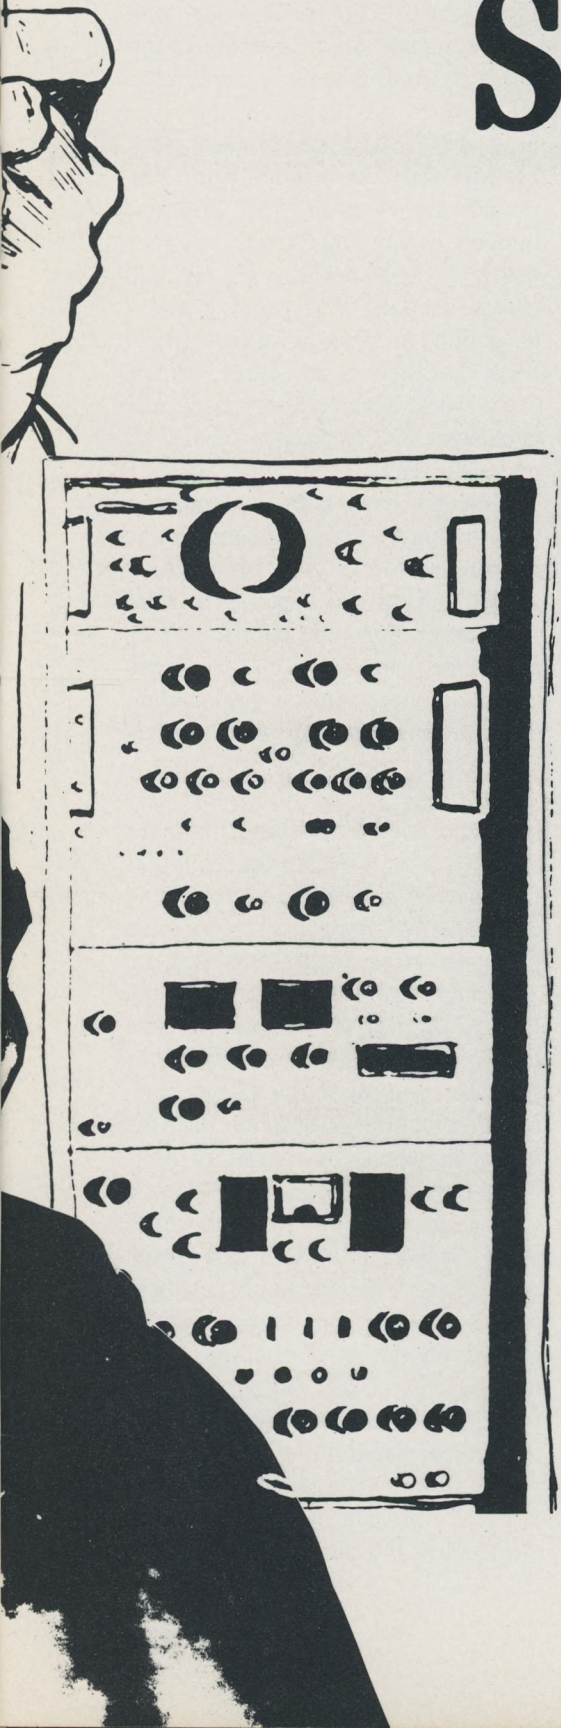

Nymphomania, kicks, sexual boredom, and just plain downright desperation are but a few of the reasons why "computer sex" has flourished into the annual multi-million dollar money-maker that it has today!

According to F. J. Starett, program director for a large west coast underground "dating" service, "there just aren't enough sex hang-ups to go around any more. Nothing is too far-out or too bizarre that some other individual hasn't had the urge to do it before!"

What about yourself? Have you ever yearned to "do it" with the girl next door while flying high in the sky in the Goodyear Blimp? Or possibly your thing is an oral operation with some chick on the top of Pike's Peak or on the bottom of the Grand Canyon? Well, don't fret, for you by no means have a monopoly on your sexual desires. According to many of the nation's leading experts, your urges, no matter how unique or off-beat they might seem to be to you, are shared by millions of other men and women all over the world. In fact, whether you are a Straight Mate or a Gay Jay, the new, sex-programmed IBM 360 computers will find the ideal mate just right for you!

Each year hundreds, if not thousands, of new computer sex cults are cropping up all across the globe, from Maine to Mandalay, running the gamut from the heterosexual to the homosexual and covering just about everything and anything imaginable in between.

Sensitivity swingles, psychedelic pioneers, gang-bang groupies, ice-cube sex orgies, devil worshippers, and do-it-yourself Polaroid pornography groups are just but a sample of the areas in which some computer sex cults have already decided to specialize. In France, for example, one cult turns on by satisfying men who, for one reason or another, are so unappealing that they are sexually hung-up. The group calls themselves the "Call Girl's Auxiliary" and they perform their tricks for kicks and not cash!

As one member, Karen F., a pretty French belly-dancer, said, "the girls in our cult simply groove on going all out for these hard luck, unfortunate guys. I mean, it's really worthwhile when you satisfy one of them. You feel like you have really accomplished something. I guess it's like the old Girl Scout scene of helping others. But sometimes you get an added reward! Since a lot of these guys haven't had it for so long, once they get up on it they really ball your tail off!"

In order to join this love-crazed cult, a girl must be at least 21 years old and have absolutely no hang-ups what-so-ever about filling out a long, ten-page qualification questionnaire. This questionnaire is used in determining whether or not the girl should be accepted for membership in the cult. After an applicant fills one out, the answers are punched up on IBM cards. These cards are then fed into a computer. The computer is the one which actually decides whether or not the girl is qualified for membership and the decision of the computer is always final!

"The reason that we insist on having this questionnaire filled out," explained one of the cult's leaders, "is that we don't want to let in any girls who might shy away from anything! For example, if one of the guys that we pick up happens to dig some perversion or way-out position, we aim to please him!"

Each night a pair of these girls cruise around the city streets of Paris in their cars searching for likely prospects to pick up. When they finally succeed, one girl drives while the other is getting her balling in the back seat by one of these unshaven, down and outers!

Denise J., a hip blonde bombshell from New York's east side, who moved to France about a year ago, said, "before I joined the Call Girls Auxiliary I didn't think that it was possible for anyone in the world to have the same hang-up which I have lived with the past few years. I used to spend my nights in New York walking the Bowery, picking up penniless beggars and giving them a twirl in some out-of-business store front or under some apartment building staircase. But to my surprise there are many women who feel the same way about helping these men as I do! Our club, for example, has a membership of well over two hundred!"

Another French group, which is a direct off-spring of the Call Girl's Auxiliary, grooves on getting themselves locked up in local European jails which put both the men and the women into the same cells. What kind of thrill do they get out of this? Well, according to pretty Bebi B. her cult's thing is "setting up gang-bangs for the poor, sex-starved bums and drunks who frequent the different cells throughout Europe.

"Two of us get locked up in a cell with anywhere from ten to twenty men," continued Bebi. "Then each one of us takes half. That's when the fun begins. It's really wild! You should see the expressions on the faces of these men when we start stripping off our clothes and ask them to pile on top of us. At first they don't believe their eyes, but after a little special coaxing they seem to come around quick enough—in more ways than one!"

Johnny Rutford, owner of one of California's largest underground computer sex cults, told me that he "only deals with individuals which ooze sex twenty-four hours a day!"

"The majority of my income comes from matching up young studs and starlets with established Hollywood stars," he continued. "These stars are willing to pay real fancy prices in order to get their hands on flesh and bone 'robots' who will perform all of the sexual oddities which turn them on! I supply one big-busted star, for example, with at least a dozen young johns a week. Her thing is big, fat lips and long, thick tongues. Another of my clients needs six studs a week, but she wants all of them on the same night—an hour apart! I have supplied my membership with everything from 300-pound fat women to 75-pound midgets, from men with 16-inch peters to women with hair on their chests. In fact, you name it and I have filled a request for it. I don't think that there is any other business in the world which offers a man more challenge and excitement than this one. It's really Freaksville!"

Yes, we have come a long way from the days of holding hands in the courting parlor, or even from petting in the back seat of a parked car for that matter. Now the computer does all of the hard work and everyone else can concentrate on getting right down to brass tacks by just doing their thing!

As pretty Chriss J., a secretary for one of New York's first computer sex cults, said, "Before the computer took over, a girl had to accept a date and hope that the guy she was going out with was able to turn her on. The same was true for the guys too, I guess. But now if you want to make the bedroom scene for one night, or one hour, you can find a groovy partner in a matter of seconds thru the use of the computer. No more waiting in bars to be picked up. No more getting drunk. Now you can really enjoy "getting it" with a clear head. And what's even better, if you happen to dig doing it doggie style or groove on doing it standing up in the bath tub, or this way or that way, you don't have to worry about getting embarrassed by asking the guy—you simply ask the computer first! It's really great to live in the age of electronics and free sex!"

HATTIE

This superBUFbrunette goes in for country living and the rugged outdoor life. She knows the woods like the palm of her hand, and is an avid nature-lover and bird-watcher. Our cameraman first spotted her while bird-watching himself, but once she came into focus, his binoculars remained aimed in her direction.

Hattie and our photographer spent the day together, during the course of which Hattie explained her aversion to city life. "I was born and raised in the city," she told us, "but I don't think I'll ever go back. The streets are congested and the air is filthy, and the people are always putting something over on you." Hattie first made the move to the country after coming under the influence of Jean-Jaque Rousseau's theories on returning to nature and the "noble savage."

Hattie's been supporting herself by making fruit jams and jellies that the locals are

HYPNOSIS AND WOMEN'S SECRET DESIRES

by Clark Bass

Men have often complained that they did not completely understand what their women really wanted sexually, but recent research has shown that a very large majority of women do not consciously even know themselves what they really want. A midwestern doctor, who prefers to remain anonymous and whom we shall call Dr. Smith, recently hypnotised a number of women in order to get through their suppressed, subconscious sexual desires, and the results of his experiments should be both fascinating and beneficial to any man who is interested in understanding and improving his sexual relationships.

About the nature of his research, Dr. Smith said, "You have to first recognize and face up to the fact that we live in a sexually suppressive society. In other words, we allow a small minority to do our thinking for us. We are forced to accept their ideas of what is right and what is wrong, what is good and what is bad, and we have never faced up to the fact that these people whom we allow to decide these things for us actually do not know any more about what is natural or normal or healthy than we ourselves do.

Instead of searching for the truth of a matter, we simply accept what we are told without question. Thus, if we feel that we want to do a certain thing, but are told by someone that doing such a thing is wrong, then we suppress the desire to do it. We are finally beginning to realize that suppression is the real social danger, not the desires themselves."

Dr. Smith went on to say that the women he had hypnotized were those who outwardly tried to live in a way that was considered normal and socially acceptable. The result is that they suffered from so many inner conflicts and turmoils that they were finally forced to seek psychological help in an effort to preserve their sanity.

"These women suffered tremendous feelings of guilt," he said, "all because they had blindly accepted the teachings of those whom they had been led to believe were authorities on human behavior. These so-called 'authorities' are only people who wish to keep society as it is and as it always has been. Unfortunately, the majority of people are totally ignorant concerning what should be natural sexual behavior. We have to reach the point where we can understand sexual desires for what they are, without condemning them or saying that certain sexual desires or modes of behavior are wrong or harmful. Only when we begin to understand things for what they really are will we be able to live with them. We cannot live with something by suppressing or ignoring it any more than we can by condemning it."

Dr. Smith explained that under normal circumstances a person is likely to ignore his true feelings if he has been taught in his past that such feelings are wrong. He will deny, even to himself, that he wants to do certain things if he has been taught that those things are not natural for a person to do. Under hypnosis, however, the hidden feelings and desires come out. In a hypnotic trance, a person does not judge whether what he is saying is right or wrong, and does not worry about what someone else will think. More important, he is willing to face the truth, and he feels the freedom to finally express exactly what is on his mind.

Dr. Smith then played some taped recordings of conversations he had had with some of his women patients. First, there was Cathy, described as a beautiful 22-year-old brunette. Cathy was single, and her problem was that she was afraid to become involved in a serious relationship because she was afraid of sex. She said she became very uptight whenever men made advances toward her, and she would get very nervous whenever anyone even tried to touch her. She did not feel that her reactions were exactly normal, and she finally sought help from Dr. Smith, who hypnotised her and had the following conversation.

"What do you think of when you are with a man?" he asked her.

"I want to go to bed with him."

"Why?"

"I always want to go to bed with men. Everytime I see a man, I look down to where his penis is, and I imagine how big it is and how it would feel going inside of me. At night I fantasize about having intercourse with all the fellows at my office, and during the day I stare at them and think of my fantasies. I can't even get close to a man without having a mad desire to spread my legs for him. I can't even look at a man without thinking about sex. I'm dying to go to bed with men, and I know that if I let one even touch me that I'll never be able to stop myself."

"Then why do you hold back from enjoying sexual relationships with the men that you like?"

"Because once I start, I know that I'll never be able to stop. Once I go to bed with a man, I'll want to go to bed with every man that I see. I won't be able to stop myself with anyone."

"Why?"

"Because I want to do it with every man in the world. That's why I can't let myself get started. Because once I begin, I'll never be satisfied until I have laid every man in the entire world. It's all I think about."

Later, when Dr. Smith played the tape back for Cathy to hear what she had said, she was utterly shocked at her own words. Once she saw and accepted what was in her mind, though, she was easily able to understand why she had previously been afraid to get involved with a man. She had been taught that sex with just any man was wrong, and since all men had been more or less the same to her, she began to subconsciously believe that she would have to choose between sex with no one or sex with everyone. Cathy gradually overcame her fear of men, and was able to have normal relationships with those who were compatible with her. Her whole problem could have been completely avoided, though, if she had not been taught that there was something wrong with sex. Moreover, Dr. Smith believes that Cathy's

This auburn-haired enchantress is at home both in her posh Manhattan penthouse and the depths of the African jungles. She's presently employed at a New York branch of a Hunters and Explorers Club. Although it's a far cry from the wilds, Ronnie says she comes in contact with plenty of wolves every day right in New York.

As a kid, Ronnie explained to us, her heroes were Nyoka the Jungle Girl and Sheena, the jungle queen of television. Her dreams came true when at the age of 19 she joined an expedition traveling to the island of Mauritius on the coast of Africa. The group was doing research and collecting relics of the extinct dodo bird, which inhabited the island until the late seventeenth century. The following year Ronnie made it to the mainland and had some pretty exciting times. From what we hear, the rest of the expedition spent as much time in pursuit of Ronnie as in pursuit of lions and tigers.

At her stylish penthouse pad, Ronnie has decorated the walls with numerous souvenirs of her African travels. Ronnie told us of her plans to write a "realistic jungle romance," unlike the stereotyped productions of the Tarzan-Jane era.

Ronnie showed us her scrapbook of photographs from her most recent expedition, pointing out some unusual features of the less frequently seen animals. The features that impressed us the most, however, were Ronnie's own endowments, some of nature's grandest. We could have shown you some photos of Ronnie's wild animals, but we figured Ronnies pictures alone were enough to drive you wild.

Ronnie says she doesn't plan to return to Africa for another year at least. Meanwhile, her charms will continue to excite the members of the New York club she works for, their thoughts undoubtedly still on pursuit and capture, Ronnie laughingly says she's one prey they'll never catch because she's got her trap set for a doctor researching various anti-snake bite serums. We may be a snake-in-the-grass as far as old loyalties are concerned, but we have to admit that Nyoka and Sheena never titillated us as much as Ronnie. □

YOU CAN HAVE A BALL ON THE GULF COAST

The gals down there are stacked three deep — and are really stacked

Go south, young man, go south. If you go far enough, you'll eventually come to the Gulf Coast, that part of America that reaches into the waters of The Gulf of Mexico, which constitutes one of the largest single resort areas in the United States. Did you know that this is also one of the most swinging and sexually liberated regions of our nation? If not, you've been missing out on a lot of the fun which thousands like you have been enjoying for years. The Gulf Coast is a summertime haven for men of all ages. It stretches several hundred miles from the tip of Florida to the southern edge of Texas, and throughout the length of it there are few if any lapses between the activities and the girls.

by Clay Tyler

The girls who come here are free and wild and willing. From all over the South and the rest of the nation as well, this is where the girls go for their big summertime fling, to release all inhibitions and give it all they've got. In fact, why limit this fun-filled area to a season? The girls are there all year around. If you show up during cold weather, you'll only have less competition. So set your sights southward, whatever the month. On the Gulf Coast, the only limitations you will ever find is the bedroom itself, and when the right man comes along, the girls are willing to go all the way.

Sunny Florida is the principal region for these fun-loving femmes. They swarm it by the hordes. The chief destinations are Pensacola, Panama City, Tampa, St. Petersburg, and Sarasota. The west Florida beaches are for fun and frolic, no holds barred,

GIRL WANTED

An overflowing blonde, teasing red head and knowing brunette — who gets the job?

by Ed Modzelewski

Mrs. Smythe scrutinized the three girls sent over by the employment agency. She asked them their names.

"I'm Gloria Hale," the blonde said. Tall, leggy and full-busted, Gloria talked with a giggle. When she moved, her tight-fitting dark-blue blouse strained against her bra-less size forties.

Mrs. Smythe, after many years of widowhood, was re-marrying and she was resigning as secretary to Mr. Johnstone. Johnstone was married to a hag, had always been a wolf, although not with her, and suggested that Mrs. Smythe find a replacement who would be attractive-looking as well as a good secretary.

As far as looks were concerned, the agency had come up with three winners.

The second girl, a knock-out of a redhead, came forward. "I'm Janice Crawford," she said.

Janice spoke in a sophisticated way for a 19-year-old. Her flaming hair fell to her shoulders and curled outwardly. Her green eyes matched her tight-fitting dress and high-heeled shoes.

"Mr. Johnstone will take you after he finishes with Miss Hale," the older woman said. Then she motioned for the third applicant to step forward.

"I—I'm Sally Harris," the studious-looking brunette said.

DORI

Raised in Texas and New Mexico, fair-haired, blue-eyed Dori is a regal lady of the wild west. As a child she was taught to ride and work with horses and cattle — a more rigorous upbringing than most young women today possess. Incidentally, shapely Dori is no less skilled in the feminine arts, particularly in sewing and attracting the attention of eager beaver males.

Dori's father raised race horses, and, Dori tells us, squandered quite a bit of dough betting on the ponies. Leaving his wife at home, he would head for the track, abandoning one nag for another. After a depressing day of many losses, he returned home one day flat broke. "I picked so many lemons today," he told Dori, "I feel like a migrant worker."

Dori recently thought she'd give big city life a trial, coming east for what turned out to be a short stay. She found it to be an incredible drag, and returned to New Mexico after two months. "I can't understand how people live that way," Dori says. "The traffic, the noise, the filthy air . . . I finally understand what the big ecology rap is all about. And there's all these jerk kids wearing phony 'western style' clothing—fancy boots, fringe jackets, cowboy hats, the whole business. The only ranches those clowns have ever seen were on the TV westerns."

Back at her father's ranch, Dori helps with the horses and keeps house as well. Afternoons often finds her bicycling on the country roads, a practice she finds relaxing.

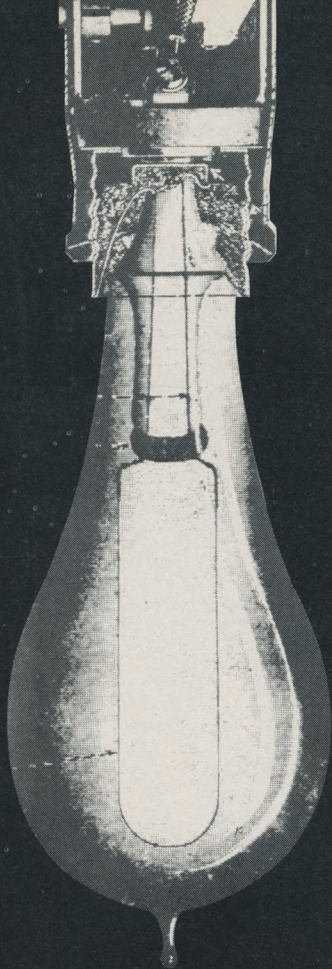

Not many of the new Detroit models make it out to Dori's town, and the neighbors all agree that Dori's is the finest shape on wheels to come their way in a long time.

Dori plans to remain out west and eventually take charge of the ranch. We think that both dyed-in-the-wool city dwellers and cowboys alike will join Dori's many admirers—no knowledge of livestock is needed to appreciate her fine set of calves. □

How much illumination should there be in love making?

Some men and women are turned on in the dark. Others like to cast some light on their loving. Those who prefer to make love in the dark say the sense of touch is electrifying enough. Their boldness increases with the blackness because light has a depressing effect on their uninhibitedness. Although darkness does offer some stimulation, it also has an effect on the sex act biologically. When women have an orgasm, their pupils dilate. This is the reason why women close their eyes when a climax is imminent. Darkness helps hide shyness. Most people are aware of their physical shortcomings. Chubby or skinny people often prefer to disguise their physiques. Darkness inspires people to do things they would never do with the lights on. This is especially true of oral sex acts or some of the more off-beat positions for intercourse. In the dark lovers can pull more surprises on their partners. This sensuous mystery adds much to the sexual excitement of couples.

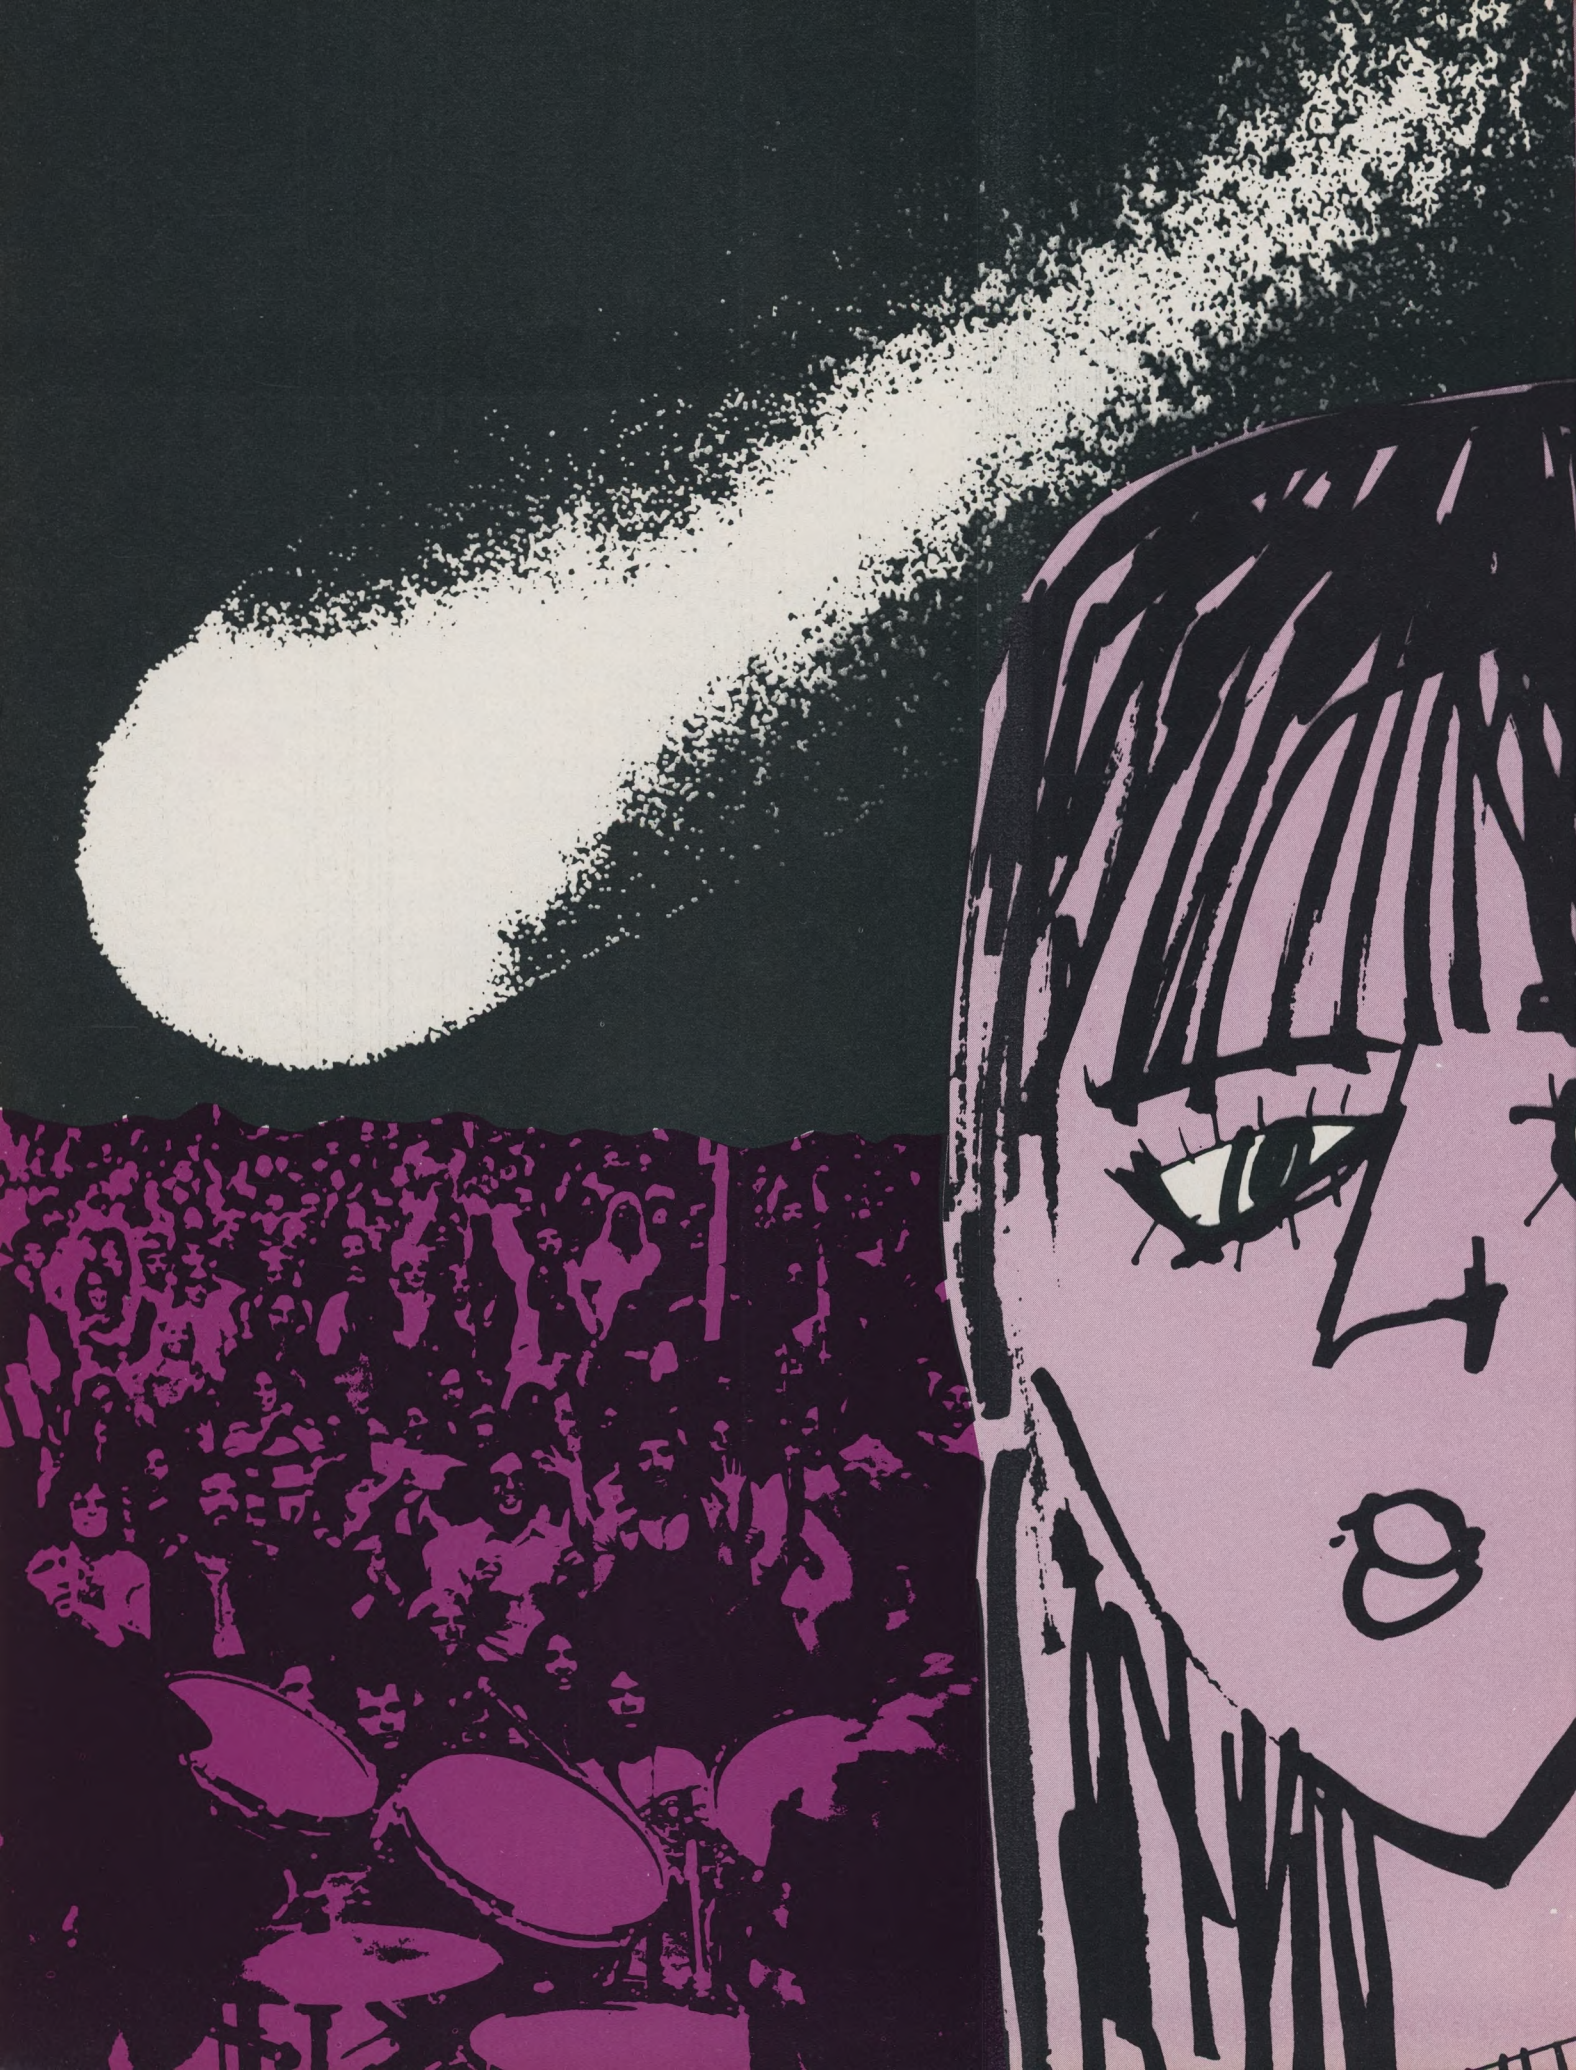

Semi-darkness is just the right amount of light on loving for some men and women. This partial visibility offers the perfect degree of stimulation. The half-light shrouds any shyness or embarrassment they might have. Erotic shadows can also add much to the atmosphere of loving. Some couples rely on a small night light. Some adjust the window blinds to admit the proper amount of light to filter inside. Others set a lamp in the floor, use a heavily shaded one, or use a light with a low watt bulb.

THE LIGHT SIDE OF EROTICISM

by C. H. Shelby

I said, "I wonder if I could just sit there in the grass with you."

She looked up in the direction of my eyes, not quite seeing, but she smiled and shrugged and said, "Sure. You belong here as well as I do." She looked like she was in a kind of daze. Not like she was on any kind of drugs or anything. She just had her own natural high going, something from inside her mind that put her up on her own cloud that maybe no one else had ever shared with her before. I took an instant liking to her, and I felt comfortable being with her like that. I just sat there at her side and stared straight ahead just like she was doing. We seemed to sort of belong together that way, and I was happy just knowing that she was there at my side.

"You come very far to get here?" I asked. It was an innocent question, just my curiosity.

But it sort of startled her that I came right out and asked her like that. "What do you mean?" she asked. She was wary and suspicious and it put me a little ill at ease that she would have such a strong reaction to such an innocent question.

"I just wondered if you had traveled very far to get here," I told her. "I just wanted to know if you came from very far away, that's all. I didn't mean anything other than that. It's really not all that important, and you don't have to answer if you don't want to."

She smiled and said, "You aren't one of the intellectuals, are you?"

I wrinkled my nose and stared between her eyes. "Now it's my turn to ask what do you mean," I said. "That's really a weird question, if you want to know the truth."

She smiled. I'd never seen anyone smile the way she smiled. It was all in her eyes, which were sort of like the eyes of a cat. I looked at her very closely then, and I could see that she didn't quite look the way normal people looked. She said, "I just didn't want to get in a conversation with an intellectual. I'm not allowed to associate with anyone who doesn't accept me for what I am."

"Oh, I said. "That's cool. What are you, anyway?"

She didn't answer my question. Instead, she said, "I just wanted to see one. You need to see a little of everything, you know."

"Just where do you come from?" I asked her.

She stared straight in my eyes and said, "Saturn."

I returned her gaze without really saying anything, then I looked up at the sky. "You mean, up there?" I asked.

"Well," she said, "actually, it's more over in that direction right now." She pointed off to the right, toward the horizon.

"And so you just sort of buzzed down to take in a rock festival?" I asked.

"I told you, we don't have any there. We don't even have rock music. We tune in sometimes to the vibrations from Earth, but it's not really taken very seriously other than the vibrations themselves."

I studied this strange girl a little more closely. I mean, I'd met some weird chicks before, but this one was really spaced-out, if you'll pardon the pun. As I said, she didn't look exactly like everyone else, but I couldn't quite put my finger on it. It was something about her eyes.

"Well, uh, exactly how did you happen to get here?" I asked nonchalantly.

She shrugged. "I just willed myself to this location. It's not such a difficult process to transfer your physical body from one place to another, once you stop accepting the limitations of time and space. You Earth people have a highly developed mentality, but you still cling to ancient physical limitations. You still continue to think that there are things you can't do. Frankly, I don't see any point in developing your intellect if you're going to limit yourselves in what you can do with it."

"Say," I said, "are you for real, or are you putting me on?"

She was stunned when I asked her this, then she smiled. "I forgot," she said, "that you haven't even developed the universal code of trust here. Well, if you aren't going to believe what I say, there's certainly no use in my exerting any energy to talk to you."

"You mean you really are from Saturn?" I asked. I was fascinated with the girl, whether she was telling the truth or not.

"It's really not such a big thing," she said, and she turned away and went back into her self-induced trance.

"Wait a minute," I protested, lightly touching her on one shoulder. "I didn't mean to insult you. Okay, I promise I'll believe whatever you have to say. I'm just not accustomed to being able to believe everyone, that's all. You don't know how people are here."

"Of course I know how people are here," she said. "We know what's going on everywhere in the universe."

"I don't get it," I told her. "You came all the way from Saturn just to hear a rock festival?"

"That's just about the only worthwhile thing you people on Earth ever do," she said. "Did you think I was going to come here to play the stock market or something?"

I had to laugh. "It's just that it's a little hard to believe that you're actually from another planet. We just don't have much to do with people from other planets, that's all."

"How do you expect to have anything to do with people from other planets when you're so divided among yourselves?" she asked. "Really, you people are a little immature, don't you think? But I can't get involved in any of your politics.

THE SPACED-OUT ROCK FESTIVAL

Julie was like no other girl he had ever met before and that was because she was from Saturn . . .

by D. R. Butler

I met Julie at a rock festival near my home in Sansville. It was such a wild scene that I guess practically anyone could have met anyone. I enjoyed the bands and the music and all the people having such a good time together, but the thing I liked most about the festival was that I met Julie. She was a strange chick. I mean, you meet all kinds at a thing like that, so you can expect just about anything, but I'd never really known anyone exactly like Julie. She even had a different way of being different. When I tell you about her, you'll probably think that you know someone like her, but you really don't. It wouldn't be possible for anyone you know to be exactly like her. I went to the festival a day early, so the big crowds hadn't begun to arrive yet. There were still a lot of people, though. Really nice people, too. The kind you like to get close to. I went alone, and I wandered around the grounds for a couple of hours or so just looking at the people. The bandstand was being set up, but there wasn't any music or anything yet. Just people rapping and grooving with each other. I didn't know what to do with myself until I saw this girl sitting alone in the grass. Her elbows were propped on her knees, and her chin was sunk in her hand. She was staring straight ahead, not really seeing anything, and she looked sort of sad and alone. That was Julie. Something made me go over to her and start rapping. I'd never really struck up with a strange girl before, but something made me do it anyway. "Hello,"

GAIL

Our first meeting with Gail was at a local pool hall. Gail impressed us not only with her knockout looks but with her skill at the game. Most female pool players never really get it up, but Gail wiped us out. Later over a couple of imported German beers, Gail told us a little about herself and consented to pose for our photographer. We eagerly set up a date for the following day at Gail's apartment.

Gail's pad proved to be one of the most creatively decorated homes we'd seen in a long time. No matter where you look, there's always something to please and distract the eye. Nothing, of course, as pleasing and distracting as Gail's magnificent, sensuous body. Gail explained that she works as an interior decorator, and had arranged the place herself. She's particularly proud of the wood-shingled canopy overhanging the pantry.

Lately, the hazardous effects of cigarettes, marijuana, and acid have been worrying Gail.

Gem of the Month

She's joined an organization that is lobbying for tighter curbs on all of these. The dangers of LSD first impressed her when her younger sister freaked out and said nothing but "wango" and "bozno" for eight months. "You don't have to be a drug freak to be hip," Gail told us. "There's so much more you can do with your life." Gail, several years ago, went through a hippie period which she is now reluctant to talk about.

We enjoyed working with Gail so much that we commissioned her to do some decorating work at our already stylish offices. Not only is Gail a top-notch interior decorator, but, as these photos will prove, she's got a most decorative exterior as well. ☐

"Honey, don't play that 'Music To Relax By' again tonight—put on some hard rock!"

written, "where women want to make love by candlelight." The flickering illumination appeals to their romantic nature. Sexologists have long known that light plays a paramount role in the sexuality of almost all animals,, including man.

One of the most unusual cases of having a desire to see the sex act is the occasional man or woman—or both—who takes a flashlight to bed so they can throw a beam on their bliss whenever they want. This switching on and off of privacy is very convenient for those who want a quick or concentrated peek.

There is not necessarily any relationship between preferring loving in the light and voyeurism. The desire to see a certain amount of copulation is natural, the psychologists say.

There are many situations where women let men examine their sex organs only with a flashlight. Marriage counselors report that many men who have been married for many years have never examined the sexual anatomy of their wives. They have always had sex in the dark. "One of the reasons for the popularity of the spread-eagle pin-up pictures today," a prominent psychologist said at a mental health seminar in New York City recently, "is because they offer an opportunity for men to see in detail the female sex opening."

Men and women who enjoy having sexual intercourse under bright lights say they like to see what they are doing to each other. They are able to see exactly how they arouse their passions. Even the facial expressions are important, they maintain.

"If I'm doing something to a man and see he registers pain instead of pleasure," a highly sexed young socialite told a Washington columnist recently, "I know to stop doing it."

"Many men get quite an emotional and ego reward," a sexologist said in one of the medical journals, "when they can see the reactions of women when they reach a climax. Some men are able to reach a climax simultaneously with women when they can see their faces contort with the pleasant sensations they are feeling."

Being able to see the organs during sex acts is instrumental in sexual satisfaction for many. Couples intent on seeing as much as they can need more than just good lighting. More and more of the "in crowd" are using mirrors to get the right reflections on loving. Making love in front of glass is not a new concept, but it is rapidly increasing in popularity.

Some men and women have been watching themselves perform sex acts with the aid of mirrors since the first couple accidentally saw their reflection in front of something shiny. Centuries ago some of the most famous brothels in Europe and this country had rooms equipped with mirrors. Many still have them for customers who want sensuous scenery. Although no formal studies have been done on grooving in front of glass, some men and women prefer the minimum of mirrors be used. In a lot of bedrooms the dresser mirrors just happen to be placed where they show all activity on the bed. Millions of the mirrors appear to be too high or too low, but most are adjustable. And they may be tilted to be very revealing.

Some imaginative couples use hand mirrors to get unusual and somewhat clinical views of the coupling of the sex organs. Some furniture installation men know the mirrors they put up supposedly for dressing purposes are primarily to show what goes on in bed rather than whether the lady of the house has her slip showing. Marriage counselors often recommend that couples use lights and mirrors in order to get out of the sexual boredom which hampers most marriages.

Mirrors are particularly beneficial, they point out, when couples want to try to perfect some of the more novel and acrobatic positions of intercourse as outlined in the deluge of sex manuals now on the market. Couples are often disappointed because they can't imitate photographs of them. Performing them before mirrors shows them really how to do them in detail.

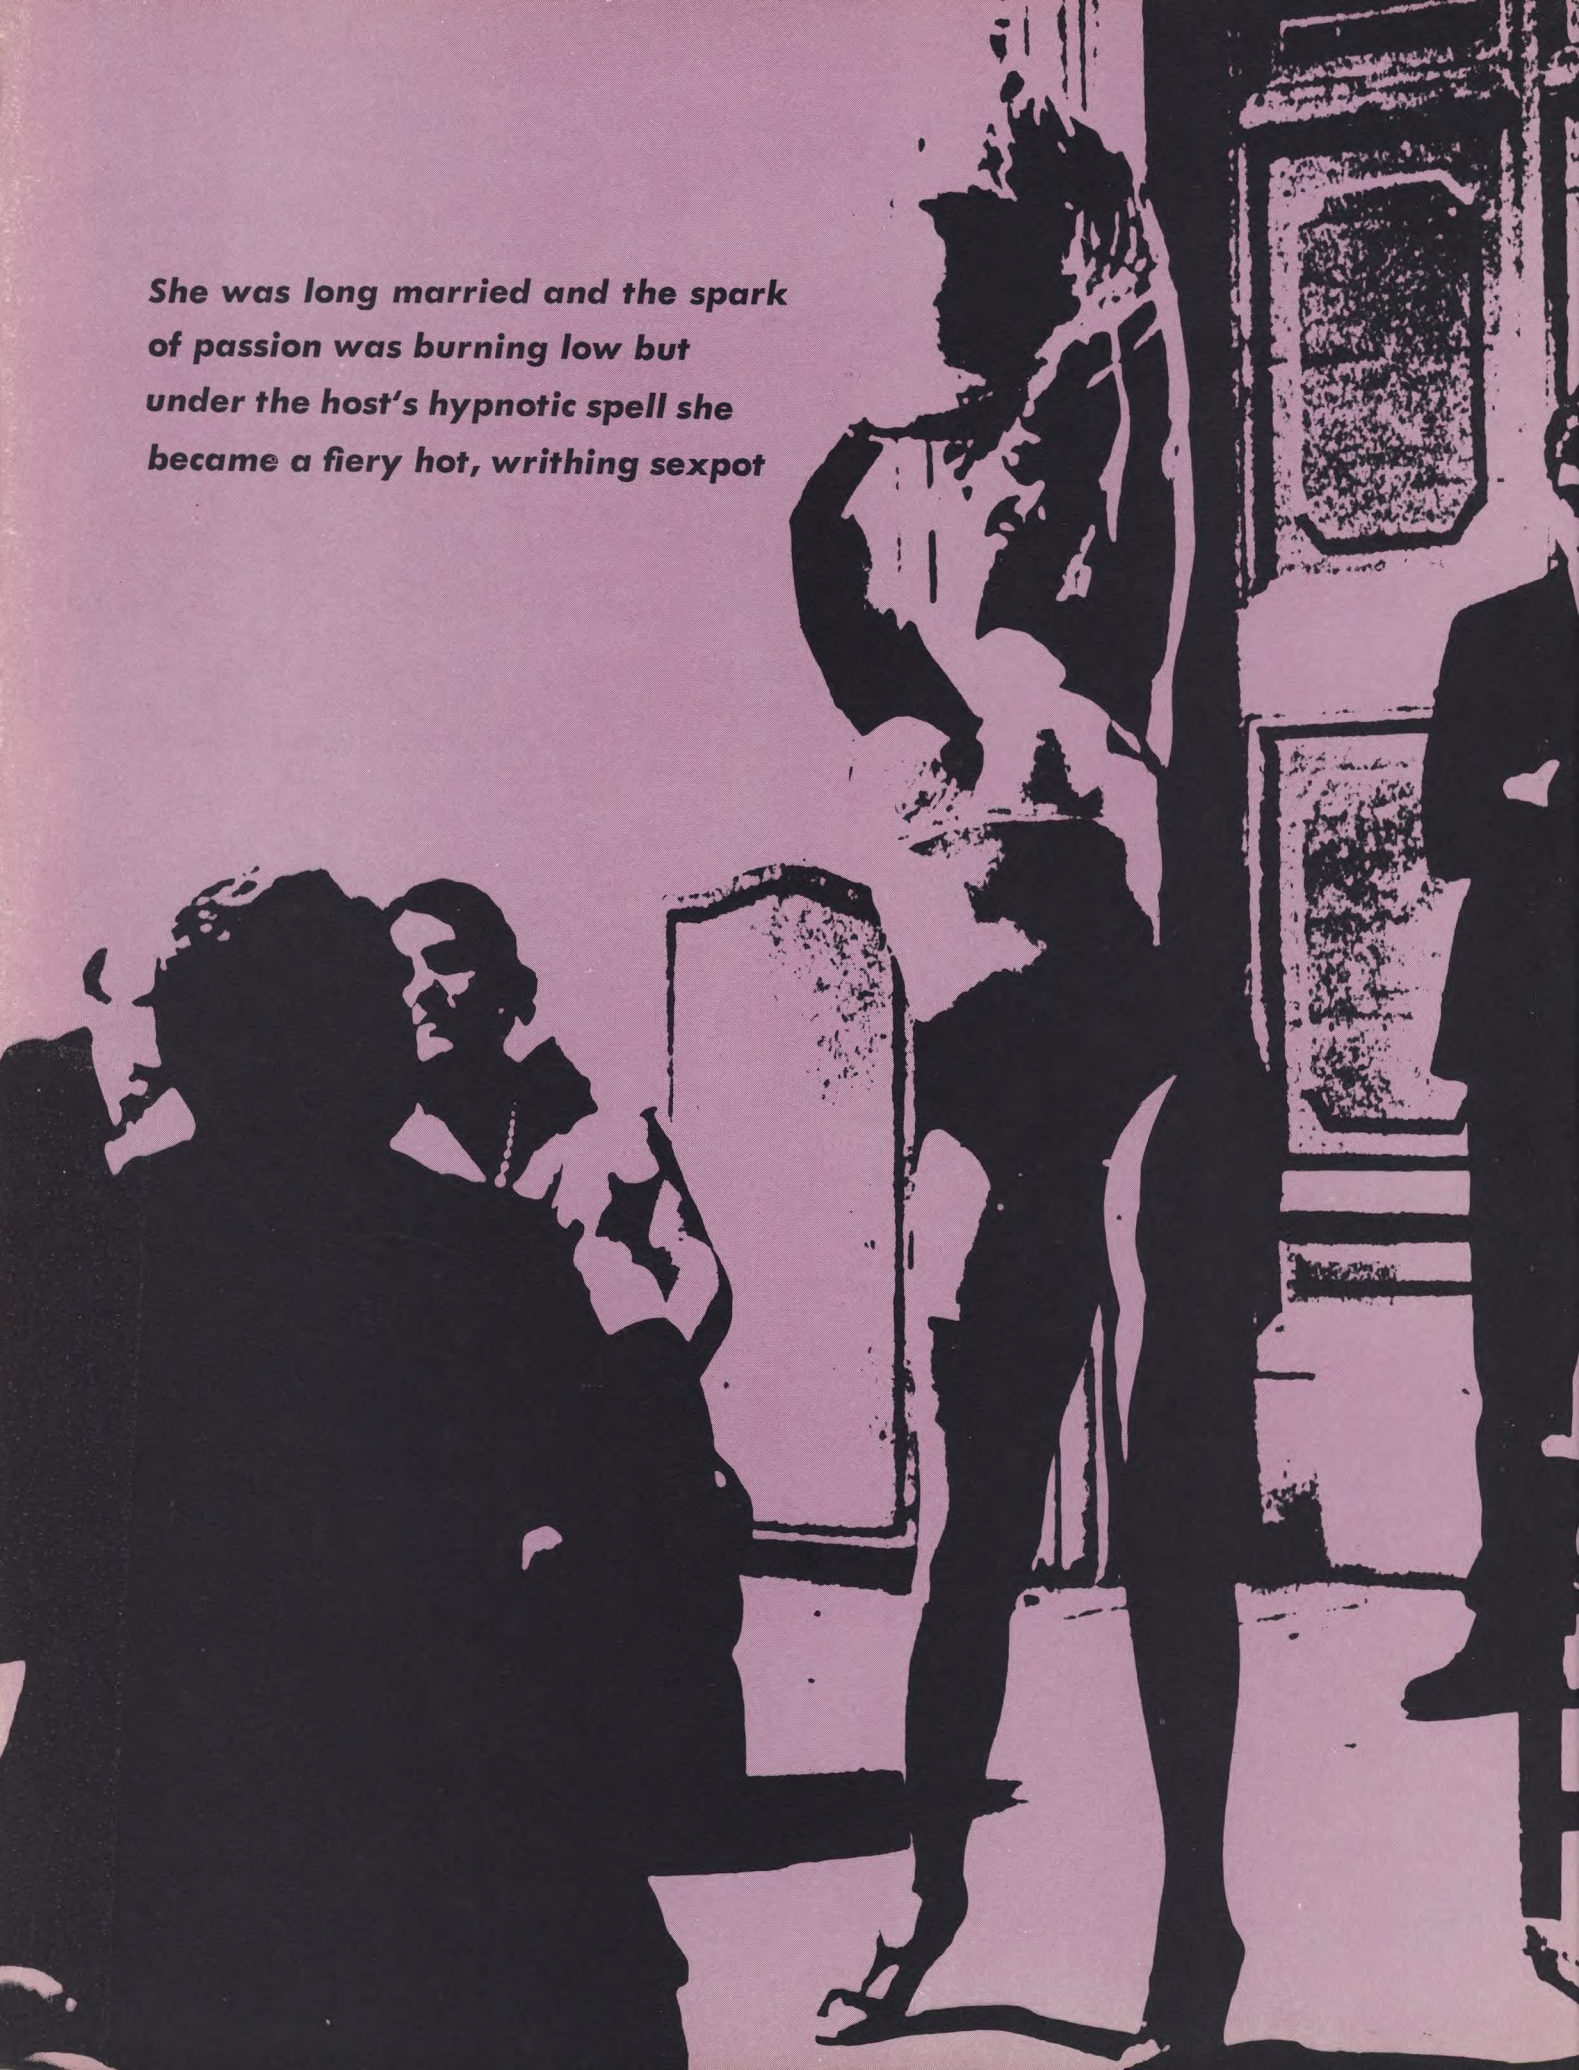

Some couples mirror their sexual intercourse simply by placing a mirror in a chair beside the bed. Those who really are enthused by seeing all their movements sometimes have mirrors on all walls and the ceiling. Some of the rooms used by a few of the girls in the Christine Keeler prostitution case in England almost reflected the downfall of the British government. Some prominent politicians like the reflecting sex parlors.

Sexologists say that women are much more prone to like having lights and mirrors than many men. Women, they say, are much more vain and exhibitionistic.

There are many cases where women arrange the bedroom decor unknown to their husbands just right to show sex acts in the bed. The men think the mirror placements are just accidental instead of intentional. Some men and women enjoy sex in the morning more than at night primarily because of the visibility.

Erotic evidence indicates that more and more men and women like a lot of light cast on sexual intercourse. Those who prefer to mirror their loving are getting some of the hottest reflections on sex. And these are some of the truest images of love. □

THE WIFE OF THE PARTY

by Bill Maury

Margo Sampson sighed, put her third cup of coffee on the dressing table and studied herself in the mirror. Her fingers probed her face, finding a sag here, the beginning of a wrinkle there. She took another sip from her coffee and peered even more closely at her image, trying to find a reason for the aching emptiness that gripped her. Her husband, Tom, was off to work, the two kids were in school and she was all alone. She knew that one of the reasons for the hollowness inside her was the definite falling away of her marital love life. It was a gradual erosion of the mutual passions that had made earlier years so much joy. Who knows what causes the cooling off? Nameless anxieties? Boredom? Sexual ennui must follow when two people live together so closely for 12 years. Or must it? Marge was too smart to expect the honeymoon to last forever. But was this withering a way of passion an inevitable part of every marriage? The joyous hour-long bouts of sensuousness had long ago dwindled to occasional shots in the dark, brief, hectic and . . . so unsatisfying. It wasn't only the lack of orgasmic fulfillment; it was the tenderness, the romance. They used to play records alone in the living room until late in the evening. Maybe a drink or two. Then, lights out. Check the kids' bedroom doors. And then, bango! Lovely. She smiled as she replayed the memories in her mind. Had she aged so much? She checked the blinds and then opened her nightgown, gazing at what she saw in the mirror. She caressed her breast, now starting the mid-30's sag, but still ripe and ready for plucking. She leaned forward and stuck her tongue out, letting it roll around her lips like the busty young models did. How long had it been since she and Tom had made love. Two weeks? No . . . nearly three. The intervals were getting longer and longer. The acts of love grew shorter. She tossed her gown on the bed and headed for the shower. The warm water splashing on her was conducive to more ruminating. What to do? An affair? No, too cheap and unrewarding . . . and dangerous. Look what happened to Marcy Pendler. Not the time-honored clichés of the milkman. No, this was strictly modern. Blonde Marcy got caught with the man who came to repair the air conditioning unit in her bedroom. See what progress society has made? Who was the party who caught them? Mr. Pendler, of course. He entered, gun-in-hand, as they say, and blasted two holes in the repairman and chipped off part of Marcy's big toe. It was the talk of the neighborhood. Of course, the joke was to take off your shoes and show your friends that you were faithful because you had toes intact.

No, no affair for her, Marge assured herself. She loved her husband and wanted it returned. How would she re-spark Tom? She shut the water off, dried herself and watched with interest as a few drops leaked off her breasts and slipped into the soft gully of her naval. Suppose, she thought suddenly, Tom wasn't warm to her because he was having an affair? No, he wouldn't. Why not? With the infrequency of their sexual jousts, Tom could easily be carrying on with another woman. Yes, that might be the cause of it all. With whom? Anyone of these so-called respected pillars of society out here in Devon Hills. How about Shirley Page? At a party last year she had popped her pelvis hard into Tom's as they danced intimately into the wee hours. And what had Tom said later? Oh yes, "She's a hungry one, that girl." Shirley Page. Blonde, attractive. Only 26. Wealthy and bored because her happy-go-lucky husband, a would-be seducer of women, was away on the road a lot, selling appliances, apparently quite successfully.

He was the life-of-the-party type. He always had a new gimmick. Magic. Playing harmonica. Anything to get the applause . . . and bore his wife, Shirley. The phone snapped her back to reality.

"Hello?"

"Marge?" said the voice. "This is Shirley Page." Speak of the devil, Marge thought.

"Oh . . . yes, Shirley," Marge stuttered. "How are you?"

"Fine. Just wondering if you and Tom would like to join a little party Saturday night. Four or five couples. A few drinks, some laughs. What say?"

"Welllll . . ." Marge hesitated. Why? Was she afraid? Was there a secret fear of losing her husband lurking somewhere? No, the hell with it. "We'd love to come."

"Great. See you around eightish."

Marge hung up and busied herself with domestic duties, brushing Shirley Page out of her thoughts. She then began to wonder how she could be lovely, alluring and tender to her Tom when he came home from work tonight.

Tom came in after six, tired, tense. "Damn trains, always late. Too hot, too crowded, too late." He kissed her lightly on the forehead, made a martini and plopped on the easy chair in the living room.

"Shirley called today," said Marge, eyeing her husband's face.

"Shirley who? Oh! Shirley Page. Yeah?"

"We're invited to a party there Saturday. Okay?"

"If you want."

Marge hit her lip. Was that too casual? "Might be fun," she said casually. Maybe her talented husband has got a new act. Like bird imitations."

"Oh, Harry? No, it's hypnotism."

"Oh? How do you know?"

Tom had picked up the evening paper and spoke now without looking up at her. "I bumped into Shirley the other day. I thought I had mentioned it. Yeah, old Harry's on the hypnotism kick. He's okay, though. A little frisky with women, especially married women."

Yes, Marge was aware. Harry always made sure he danced with Marge and got plenty of cheap feels of her good-sized bosom. Twice he "accidentally" brushed her breasts with the back of his hand. And he fooled with other wives more forcefully. Once Marge came into the kitchen just in time to see Else Schmitt haul off and whack him across the face. Yes, indeed, Harry did get frisky with other wives.

That night Marge slipped into one of her most revealing nightgowns. As she approached the bed hoping to stir in Tom some of the joyous abandon of the past, she was suddenly disappointed. The steady, rhythmic breathing of her husband was escaping from the covers. She sighed and tried to sleep. It was a long time coming.

The drinking began early that Saturday night at the Page's. The laughter was too loud and the shrill female cackles were coming too quickly for so early in the evening.

All the in topics were given the proper hearing. The latest sexy best-seller by a lady novelist; the marital escapes of Hollywood's newest sex symbol; the cost of living and the naughty tale of what one of the kids said to a teacher at school. Theresa Terran, a darkly attractive woman of 33, told of how she overheard her boys discussing the joys of peeking up their teacher's dress in school. "It's dark," said Theresa, recounting the story as she burst into a fit of laughter.

Marge seldom joined in the gossip and seldom drank. Tonight, though, she was edgy. She was on her third martini when she noticed Tom was gone. And . . . so was Shirley Page!

The kitchen! She excused herself and walked in quietly. There was Shirley, nuzzling her Tom! She leaned against him and rubbed his belly. Then her hand slipped lower . . . lower. Marge gulped so loudly she thought they would hear.

She heard Shirley whisper. "When, Tom? When?"

Tom moved away. "I don't know. Not here. Please . . . don't do that." He took her hand away. But it returned, continuing its ministrations.

Shrieks and cries from the living room snapped Shirley away from Tom. A familiar voice was talking loudly. "Come on in, everyone. Show time!" It was Harry Page. "El Page, the great hypnotist, will perform miracles before your very eyes."

Marge sighed with relief as Tom and Shirley broke apart and took different routes out of the kitchen into the living room. Tom went as far away as possible from Shirley and sat down, reaching for his whiskey glass and taking a long, deep pull, nearly emptying it.

"Who's my victim?" asked Harry. "Excuse me, I mean subject. Who will El Page put under his power to do his every wish, to obey his every command, no matter how naughty?" He leered and gave off with an old-time villain's laugh.

No one volunteered. In fact, everyone pointed at someone else. "Take her." "Not me." Harry made the rounds of the room, looking at everyone closely. Suddenly he stopped in front of Marge. "Ah, here is my target . . . er, subject. The silent one. Let's see if her mind can withstand my thoughts . . . my evil thoughts." He laughed again, twirling an invisible moustache.

Angry at Tom, upset at Shirley

"I'm as anxious as you are, darling, but I'm afraid it will take another five weeks."

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL AND PRACTICAL BOOK ON PHYSICAL LOVE! The PICTURE BOOK of SEXUAL LOVE

FULL COLOR AND BLACK & WHITE
PHOTOS

320 oversized
7 1/8 by 10 1/8
pages.

THE PICTURE BOOK OF SEXUAL LOVE was a national best seller in its hard cover edition. Over 225,000 copies were sold at $15. Now it is available in a complete, unabridged special edition for only $4.95.

In clear and simple text, in almost two hundred beautiful and candid photographs, THE PICTURE BOOK OF SEXUAL LOVE explores the whole field of physical love. Here is a book which treats all aspects of sex as part of the most beautiful emotion there is — all embracing, complete love between two human beings.

THE PICTURE BOOK OF SEXUAL LOVE IS BIG!

BIG IN SIZE 320 beautifully & clearly printed oversized pages

BIG IN PHOTOGRAPHS AND COLOR 196 magnificently reproduced photographs, many in gorgeous, faithful color

BIG IN VALUE:

Nearly a quarter million copies were sold at $15. Same text, same photographs in this special edition FOR ONLY $4.95. A saving of $10!

BIG IN BENEFITS

With complete candor, with no shame or prudery, the book discusses fully all aspects of male and female sexuality, and what to do to bring them together with the greatest satisfaction to husband and wife. There are chapters on the building of sexual power, sexual stimulation, scaling new heights, building feminine passion, the dangers of fear, male capacity, intercourse positions and movement, three chapters on sexual intercourse positions and sexual motions. All written in everyday language everyone can understand and benefit from. The photographs, many in full color, are as beautiful as they are instructive. They show a lovely young married couple, nude, in a wide variety of pre-coital and coital positions.

HOW A HUSBAND AND WIFE CAN GIVE GREATER PLEASURE TO EACH OTHER

We can all make love, but how many of us can say our sex life is as satisfying as it should be? THE PICTURE BOOK OF SEXUAL LOVE fills that need. Its exploration of sex can help husbands and wives discover new caresses, new parts of the body sensitive to erotic stimulation, new ways of making love, pitfalls to avoid, helpful advice on love making when fatigue or pregnancy makes intercourse difficult or impossible. No married couple should be without this valuable and beautiful book.

The price of this deluxe softbound edition is only $4.95 postpaid. But you need not risk even one penny! After reading this magnificent book, you must discover gratification and fulfillment beyond your fondest hopes — or simply return the book for a prompt refund. (You will have read it free!) and high with martinis, Marge allowed herself to be led to the center of the floor. Harry held her hands in place at her sides, then backed off, staring hard into her eyes.

"Now listen, my pet," he said in a soft drone. "You are in my power. You will react sympathetically to my deep seated feelings, my wants, my commands . . . my desires."

He repeated this over and over, his voice getting fainter. Marge began to feel drowsy. She closed her eyes and listened to Harry drone on.

Suddenly the other couples in the room were brought to life. Marge, eyes tightly closed, suddenly crouched low and began rubbing her hands, fingers extended, up her thighs. She moved them up and began rubbing her breasts as her tongue popped out of her mouth, leaping in and out. Then soft, urgent moans escaped from her lips.

"No, no," Marge murmured breathlessly as her head rolled back and forth. Tom leaped up to stop his wife, but then he sat back intrigued by what he saw as Marge suddenly slipped her dress down from her shoulder, brought a lovely ripe breast from her brassiere, cupped it in her hand and offered it to an imaginary lover.

Then quickly, Marge was on the floor, twitching, rolling from side to side. She moaned and brought her long, stockinged legs up . . . up . . . up . . . and then out . . . wide.

The room was perfectly silent. Tom started to move again, but Harry restrained him. "No. It's dangerous to wake them." Tom sat back and watched with the others. Tom gulped and bit his lip tightly as he saw his wife's white thighs above her stocking tops. Now she revealed her pubic bulge encased tightly in brief black panties. Now, her knees bent and open wide, her pelvis began moving slowly. More moans. More vigorous movements. Then . . . an avalanche of quivers and quakes as her bottom bounced up and down, thumping the rug in a violent, impassioned orgasmic frenzy.

YOU CAN HAVE A BALL

although there's plenty to be bared. There's a lot to see, all right, if you only want to look, but merely looking is not enough for very long. And there's no reason to end it there the girls who go to Florida are searching for more than only to be seen. They bare their wares for a purpose, and they expect results — like quick action, fast and furious, anything and everything you can give them. They're no prudes, baby. They're out for all the pleasures life has to offer.

Florida's trademark is the bar on the beach. They're for meeting the opposite sex, and once accomplished, the fair sex is all ready to really get together. There's more in those bikinis than meets the eye, but they won't withhold it for long. It's practically yours for the asking. There's sex in the air, and it drifts all the way into the motel rooms for anyone who wants to take it with them. If you've been spending more time vertical than horizontal lately, and have decided that that's not the life for you, then take yourself to where the action is good. There are many miles of Florida shore, and the chicks there are waiting for someone just like you.

Florida is by no means the only haven for swingers in the area, however. Just a few miles further west is a pleasure paradise that those outside the immediate area are likely to ignore, and foolishly so. The name of the place is Biloxi, Mississippi, but the South has never been like this. Biloxi is second only to New Orleans in being the sin capital of the South, and it comes a close second in picturesque burlesque clubs, too, both in quantity and quality. This is where sex hangs raw and loose, and you almost have to duck it to miss it. The burlesque queens are plentiful, and after the show they don't like to go home alone. They rarely do.

Biloxi has a place for everyone. It probably has the largest and swankiest hotels this side of Miami, and there are lots of little ones where the action is fast. There's not much said about taking girls to your room, although you're wondered about if you don't. For some reason, the girls in this city are more likely to accompany a stranger to his hotel room than almost anywhere else in the world. Perhaps this is just the way they've been brought up. At any rate, the forthright pleasure-seeker can return to his room practically any night of the week with a broad dangling from each arm.

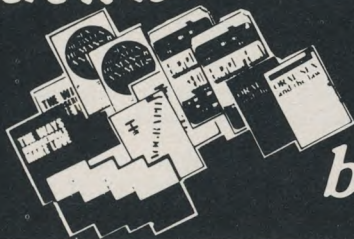

The girls are stacked three deep, and just plain stacked. It's not a matter of looking for them, but more of wading through them. The only real problem arises when it comes time to make a choice, but if you're one of the hardcore swingers you can take on several at once. These girls will go along with this, as they're out for fun anyway they can get it. They never worry about gossip when they know you're just passing through. All the girls look good, and if you have will power enough to pry your gaze briefly from the bikinis, you'll find the faces bright and pretty. Maybe you'll even catch a wink or two, but not very much sleep at all.

The place to go in Biloxi is the large club which features nationally known bands nightly, knock-out go-go girls, and a floor full of chicks just waiting to be invited to join you for whatever's on your mind. The atmosphere is as groovy as you'll find anywhere, the music loud and solid, and you'll find yourself completely surrounded by the right kind of people. What's more, you won't go back to the hotel alone, you'll be in expert hands that are learned in doing what you like to be done. It's not the Mississippi you've heard about. The plantations are far north from here.

You might say that the Gulf Coast area is a rebellion center for the conservative traditions the South has always stood for. In Biloxi, the girls begin young in learning how to please their men. Even the high school crowd frequents the burlesque clubs, and the parties that take place nightly are as swinging as any you will find here it is!

DECISIONS IN DENMARK

In 1969 the Danish parliament removed all restrictions on pornographic pictorial materials. 250 color and black and white photographs fill these two books and show you exactly what the Danes can now see. The text traces the origin of Denmark's historic decision. To report fully on the new freedom of the Danes the publishers have included many full color reproductions from Danish magazines, showing without any censorship, intercourse, fellatio, analism, group sex, homosexuality, lesbianism and bestiality. Should we abolish all restrictions on pornography in this country? Read and see the arguments for both sides and learn all there is to know about the "Danish Experiment."

anywhere. The best part is that everyone who is in earshot — which just might cover quite a distance — is cordially invited. One thing that remains is that famous Southern hospitality, and the girls have learned to transport it to the bedroom. Most of their favors, though, are bestowed upon the men who have come down for a fling, and they know how to give any man everything he wants. They enjoy their sex, and none of them are the least bit ashamed to admit it. In fact, they're only too proud to prove it to you.

Even further west along the Gulf Coast is the swinging city of Galveston, Texas. This is the summer meeting pad for the hip collegians, although they happily welcome any and all outsiders to join in the fun. They gather annually to make up for whatever they've missed out on during nine months of school, and making out is the password. To be sure, the girls let everything hang-out altogether, and they throw their inhibitions to the wind. No one leaves Galveston sexually frustrated, and everyone there sees to it. There's only one thing going, and the longer you can do it, the more accepted you will be.

Sexual liberation has come a long way here. Bring a mate or a date, and more than likely someone's going to ask you either to swap or to join them in the next scheduled orgy. Group sex is a big thing, and happiness grows when everyone is included. If it's the wrong season for a bikini, the girls will still wear the shortest skirts possible, but even these are dismissed once they are inside. Bring a crowd together, and the first thing you know everyone is naked. The parties may be more wild than most, but no one really complains. That's a way of life there. In their minds, a whole week without an orgy is extremely depressing. But even if you aren't for the group scene, you can easily find some babe who's more than willing to concentrate all her attentions on you. In fact, they are looking for you every bit as much as you are looking for them.

In the summer, the beach swings all night in Galveston. On the sand are the open-roofed discotheques with bands talented enough to play music anyway you like it. The most famous of these nightspots is the College Inn, which you will learn is appropriately named. You rarely take dates to these places you go there to find one. Look around you, the way they move, the way they smile — is it possible to resist? Look above you. You can see the stars, all right, but there's a little platform around the top just large enough for the girls to dance on it. And dance they do. There might not necessarily be any regular go-go-girls, but there's always a few among the crowd who go up to show off everything they have.

You can see right up more miniskirts than you've ever dreamed possible in one night, and it's all yours if you want it. Just wiggle your little finger. With a little incentive they'll be down fast. This may not be the way you envision Texas, but these Texans are swinging every night with an open invitation for you to join them. Dare you decline?

So that's a capsule roundup of what the Gulf Coast has for you. You can make of it whatever you want. The important thing is that you know that it's there. Most people don't. The far-out sexual activities of the girls who go there, however, are too intriguing for any adventurous young man to avoid. Maybe you'd better go see for yourself. Who knows, you may never want to leave!

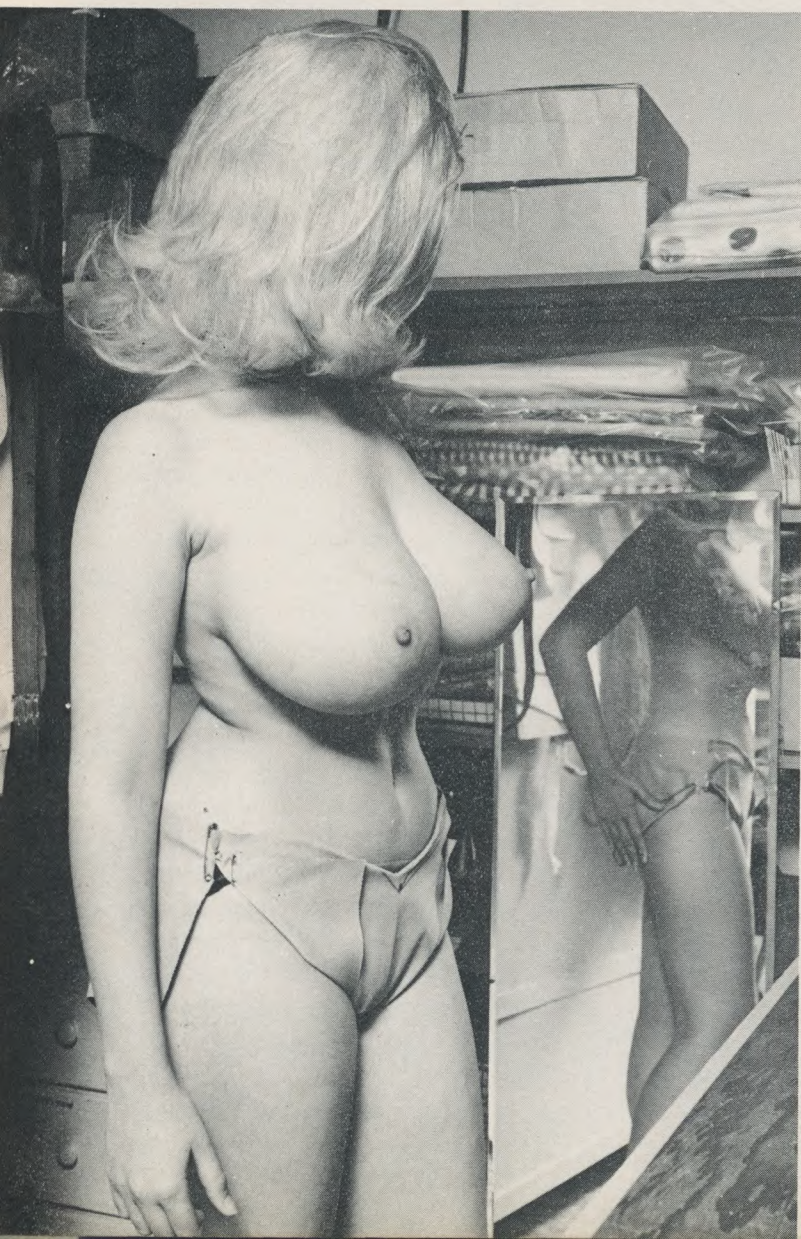

LISA

Back by popular demand, voluptuous Lisa has appeared on our pages before. We really enjoy running her pix as much as our readers dig viewing them. Since we last saw her, Lisa has taken an interest in ancient Greek history and has considerably developed her talents on the guitar.

Lisa, whose resemblance to Jayne Mansfield has attracted the eye of more than one Hollywood filmmaker, first became interested in Greek history while playing a minor role in a Hollywood extravaganza dealing with the life of Socrates. The film was shot mostly in Greece, and Lisa got to see some ruins of once noble and breathtaking buildings. "They were in pretty sad shape," Lisa reports. Not so Lisa's own monumental structure which, as our readers can easily see, is in great shape and is also noble and breast-taking, er, we mean breathtaking.

Lisa's Greek studies have led her to an organization which holds some rather unorthodox historical views. Lisa now believes that the Greeks were the first to discover America. In 425 B.C., she told us, the Greeks walked across the Bering Strait onto this continent, fleeing from a war in their own homeland. We don't know if she's got her figures right but we'd never argue with a gal with a right figure like hers.

In between shots, Lisa entertained us with several performances on the guitar. Her repertoire now includes a medley of pieces in open G tuning by the Mississippi bluesman, Buddy Boy Hawkins. She also played a slide guitar piece learned from a recording by Charley Paton. "Charley has always been one of my favorites," she explained.

We admire a girl with such diverse and refined tastes as country blues guitar and ancient and ancient Greek history. As you know, the ancient Greeks had a love for classical beauty and if Lisa had lived back then, she would have been idolized for her beauty — as she is today. Even with her arms, Venus de Milo would have been no match for Lisa who would have won a beauty contest between them hands down. Alexander may have been great but Lisa, with her honey-blonde hair, lovely blue eyes, peaches and cream complexion, and statuesque figure is the greatest. All hail Lisa the Great. ☐ guy over the phone. I rub my thighs together until I have that good feeling ten or fifteen times a day. I do it on dates—in the car, in restaurants, in movies. I make myself have that good feeling three or four times on every date, and I do it again to myself with my fingers before I go to sleep every night. I can always make myself feel good, but I never feel anything when I am in bed with a man."

Dr. Smith then brought her out of her trance and talked to her in her normal conscious state.

"Do you ever masturbate?" he asked her.

She blushed. "Of course not. I can't imagine myself doing something like that."

"Why not?" he asked.

"Because I've been taught that it's wrong. Nice girls don't do things to their bodies. Besides, it's supposed to be unhealthy."

Then Dr. Smith played the tape for her to hear what she had said under hypnosis. Marie couldn't believe her ears! The truth was, she masturbated practically all day long, everyday of her life, but she actually suppressed the knowledge that she was doing it. She would admit that she touched herself, but she would never admit that she was masturbating. Subconsciously, she felt so guilty about all the orgasms she had masturbating that she literally would not allow herself to feel anything whenever she had sex with a man. Once she faced up to the fact that she had been masturbating all the time, and that there was nothing wrong with what she had done, she was able to begin enjoying sex with men.

"Marie's problem is just as common among women as Cathy's problem," Dr. Smith said. "Medical science learned years ago that masturbation is the most natural thing in the world, but parents continue to teach their children that there is something wrong with it. Such ignorant teachings result in more sexual hang-ups than most people could ever realize."

fect shape physically, though, and so had come to Dr. Smith for psychological aid.

After hypnotising her, he asked, "Why can't you feel anything when you are having sex with a man?"

"Because I think about doing it myself," she answered.

"Doing what yourself?"

"Making myself feel good."

"Do you ever make yourself feel good?"

"Yes, all the time. The first thing I do in the morning when I wake up is put my hand between my thighs and rub myself until I have that good feeling all over my body. Then, when I am at the office, I rub my thighs together everytime a man is in the room, or whenever I talk to a case is quite common among young women, but that the majority of them simply accept their fears of men and sex as being completely normal.

The next tape was of Marie, a shapely blonde, 20 years old, who worked as a secretary for an insurance company. Marie had engaged in sex with several men, but had never enjoyed it. She feared that she was frigid. She seemed to be in per-

The next tape was a conversation with Angela, who was 19 years old and had been married a year. Like Marie, she complained of not being able to enjoy the sex act with her husband. She didn't see any reason for her to be frigid, though, and wanted to see if perhaps she had some kind of mental block.

Dr. Smith hypnotized her and asked, "Why don't you enjoy sex with your husband?"

"Because he never makes it exciting enough," she replied.

"What do you want him to do?"

"I'd like for him to be a little more rough and masculine than he is. It's a drag when he just touches my breasts and climbs on top. I'd like for him to use his tongue on me—and make me do the same to him. Sometimes I want him to turn me over and ram me from behind like an animal. I want to be an animal! And sometimes I want to get on top of him and ride him until we both collapse. It would be fun to be on top myself once in a while."

Angela went on to describe several other variations and positions before Dr. Smith finally brought her back to her normal conscious state. Normally, Angela was quiet, shy, timid of even discussing sex. She would get red in the face just talking about it. Dr. Smith then asked her if she had ever desired oral sex, or if she had ever wanted to try different positions with her husband. She told him that she didn't even know what he was talking about. She claimed that she had never even heard of oral sex, and that as far as she knew, the only way to have intercourse was with the man on top.

Of course, she was shocked when she heard her own voice saying the things she had said under hypnosis. She said she didn't have any idea where such thoughts came from, although she admitted that the things she said aroused her when she thought about them. As it turned out, of course, she had been taught that any form of sexual variety was wrong and sinful, and so she had consciously suppressed all knowledge of such things. Dr. Smith had quite a few talks with both Angela and her husband, explaining that sexual variety was not only normal, but that it was very beneficial toward a satisfying sexual relationship. When Angela finally faced up to the fact that she only wanted to do what thousands of others were doing every day, she became a completely new person. She never had any problems with her sex life again.

Most of the other tapes were merely variations of some sort from the three listed above. There were wives who had suppressed desires to sleep with men other than their husbands, many single girls who utterly craved sex and suffered all sorts of psychological problems because they would not consciously admit what they actually wanted to do, and many women like Angela who desired methods of sexual variety but would not consider it because they were afraid they would be perverted or something. All of the problems, without exception, were the results of misconceptions about what was right, or good, or normal. The evidence was clear that our society is plagued with an overwhelming lack of sex education.

"The trouble," said Dr. Smith, "is that the real facts concerning human sexuality have been hidden for too long. It's time that we freed ourselves from the bondage of our own past. We need to face up to our real desires and our real feelings. Each person must decide for himself what is right and wrong for him. As a general rule, if something does not harm anyone, then it could not possibly be wrong. None of these women would have had these problems if they had not blindly accepted the false beliefs of others."

In other words, Dr. Smith concluded, we humans are best off when we accept the fact that we have human desires and needs. It's time we faced up to what we are.

After all, what's so bad about being human? ☐ just wild about. After sampling some, we agreed that they're among the most delectable we've ever tasted — almost as delectable as Hattie's own tempting curves.

Among the pastimes that Hattie has gotten into while living in her country retreat are painting and sculpting. Hattie showed us her most recently completed work, a larger than life-size bust of the king of western swing, Bob Wills. Speaking of impressive busts, don't overlook Hattie's — which is like saying don't overlook the Atlantic Ocean.

Hattie plans to make occasional visits to the Big Apple for modeling jobs, but otherwise plans to spend most of her time in the quiet and peaceful country. Man, anyplace where Hattie's at has to be the kind of country we like, reveling in those scenic wonders.

SPACED-OUT FESTIVAL

I received permission to come to the rock festival only with the stipulation that I not talk to any intellectuals. If you start asking me a lot of questions, I'm afraid I'll have to return, and you'll have caused me to miss the music."

"You like rock music?" I asked.

"It generates a lot of good vibrations," she said. "Most of the vibrations on Earth are rated unsatisfactory, undesirable, or unhealthy. The vibrations at rock festivals are the only ones that would be permissible on Saturn. That's why I was allowed to come. I wouldn't have been allowed for any other purpose on Earth. But I'd rather not talk about it anymore, if you don't mind." She turned away again, and went back into her trance.

"What do you do when you do that?" I asked.

"I reflect," she said.

"You reflect?"

She smiled. "You know, I try to reflect myself in others. But you people on Earth are very bad at reflections. You think about yourself too much." She looked at me straight in the eyes. "You really make a lousy mirror, you know."

After that, Julie wanted to walk around some, just to observe some of the activities, she said. She told me I could stay with her if I wouldn't tell anyone where she was from. She said it would complicate things for her, and she wanted to keep everything simple. It was okay with me. I wanted to keep her all for myself, anyway.

We came across a group of guys and girls frolicking in the grass. There was a lot of laughing, plus a great deal of kissing and fondling and all of that. You know how people are at rock festivals. They can be themselves, without worrying about what some clown is thinking about them.

"Now that's what I like to see," Julie said. "You could use a lot more of that here on Earth."

"We can join if you like," I suggested hopefully.

She smiled. "No, I'd rather just look around some more right now."

At least it was a hint for the future. For the first time, I gave her body the once over. She had all the curves in all the right places. When it came to being a woman, it didn't seem to matter at all that she was a visitor from outer space. I felt a little surge in the loins at the thought of what we could do together.

It caused her to glance at me from the corner of her eye. "Boy!" she said, "I'm not sure what you just thought, but you certainly put out some body heat! You'd better get control of yourself." She smiled playfully, though and I grinned back at her. She was a pretty good kid, even if she was a little kooky.

So we walked around and saw the people, and then we retreated to a little spot among some trees where we could be mostly alone. We lay in the grass, and I looked at her legs that were now exposed under her short skirt. "Well, what do you think?" I asked.

"There's nothing to think," she said, "but it's all very nice. I feel that I'm going to enjoy myself, if that's what you mean."

"I'd hate for you to go back disappointed."

"You're only disappointed when you don't appreciate something for what it is," she said. "Something like this is easy to appreciate. It's free and spontaneous and people let out their feelings and emotions. It's always easy to enjoy something where real feelings are involved."

I allowed my hand to reach over and touch her thigh. "I know what you mean," I said.

"What's your name?" she asked. "Pete."

"You're very nice, Pete."

"I like you, too."

"But I don't know if we should get sexually involved. It might complicate things. On Saturn, we base our lives on complete simplicity. Sex is a simple thing to be enjoyed. You people on Earth tend to make it so complicated that you can't even enjoy it."

"I'm willing to try it your way," I told her.

"Are you really?" she asked.

"Yes," I said. I meant it.

"Okay. Then completely forget about your ego-self, and get totally involved in feeling our togetherness. It's very easy, once you try it."

I didn't really know what she was talking about, but I decided to go along with her. I certainly didn't have anything to lose.

Julie moved toward me, and that dazed look returned to her eyes. Like she was in some kind of weird trance, she began removing our clothes. Her fingers began nimbly exploring my body, and I felt myself readily responding. In a few moments we were both completely nude, and her firm nipples pressed against my chest. I was about to engage in interplanetary sex.

Suddenly there was a rustle in the bushes at our side, and I looked up to see two uniformed policemen coming toward us. "Okay, you kids," one of them boomed gruffly. "Let's see how fast you can get dressed. We were afraid there was going to be quite a bit of hanky-panky going on around here."

I froze in fear. What on Earth was going to happen now? I looked at Julie. "This is a complication of the worse kind," she said.

We got our clothes on in a hurry. Neither of the cops could take his eyes off Julie, though, and they didn't really seem too concerned with me. I felt a little better when I was dressed again, although Julie promptly disappeared right before our eyes.

The cops stared at each other incredulously. Then they turned to me. "Where in hell did she go?" one of them muttered.

Julie had taught me to be truthful. "Saturn," I told him.

"Wise guy, eh! Come along with us, kid." With a cop at each side, I was led away. I had gotten myself into a mess but what really bothered me was the fear I'd never see Julie again. I didn't blame her for pulling the disappearing act under the circumstances, but I did feel bad that she had deserted me completely.

Suddenly there were loud roars from the midst of the crowd, which had increased considerably since Julie and I had walked among them earlier. They all bunched into one gigantic mob right in the center of the large field, and there were loud shouts which I couldn't make out.

The cops didn't know what to do with me, but they knew they had to see what was going on in a hurry, before it got out of hand. Finally they decided to take me with them. The three of us rushed to where the mob was gathering. The cops tried to push their way through, while still trying to hold on to me. They couldn't do it, and I managed to get loose. I forced my way back toward the edge of the crowd, wondering where I could hide so that I couldn't be found.

There was another loud roar from the center of the throng, and tempted as I was to see what was going on, I decided I had better get away while I had the chance. When I burst into the clear, though, Julie was waiting for me.

"Come, Pete," she shouted, and we ran toward the trees.

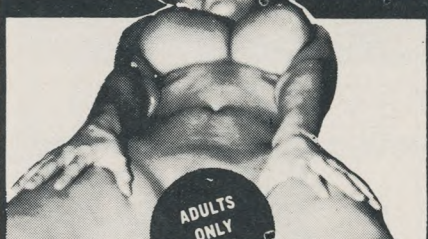

When we were completely hidden from view again we stopped to catch our breath. "Where did you disappear to?" I asked, puffing.

"I thought I'd better mix among your people," she said. "It was quite simple to catch their attention once I removed my clothes."

"You mean you were the one who caused all the commotion?"

"Of course. Commotions are extremely easy to cause here on Earth. I did some things none of your girls have ever been seen doing. Actually, I commanded quite a bit of interest. I hated to disappoint them by disappearing again when I sensed you were free."

"So that's what caused the other uproar?"

She smiled. "You Earth people make such a big deal about a body going from one place to another just because you can't physically see it in between."

"Well," I said, "we got ourselves out of that one. At least, you got us out of it. But it looks like we're going to have to miss the rest of the festival. They'll be looking for us."

Her eyes twinkled in that mysterious way of hers. "I've got three days to spend here," she said. "We'll just have to entertain ourselves the best way we can."

I sat down in the grass, beginning to get interested. "I guess you're right. Incidentally, what were you doing that you said Earth girls can't do?"

She spent the next three days showing me. Believe me, it was out of this world! ☐

COMPUTER SEX CULTS

Since the innovation of the computer sex cult, a man never has to worry about being a stranger in any city again. Whether he is traveling through New York or West Berlin he can swing doing his thing with one hip chick or, if he prefers, he can hook himself up with a groupie and switch all night long until he runs out or runs dry. And if you have any doubts about whether or not this is really going on, simply ask any traveling salesman. He'll tell you straight out that the days of the "Farmer's Daughter" are long gone, and most probably forever!

Today no matter what you enjoy, whether your home base is New York, Los Angeles, Paris, Rome, or London, you can do your thing via the computer.

Yes, it's just another fringe benefit for being alive in the 1970's, an age which is certain to stand out in the history books as the Era of Computer Sex! ☐

Sally clutched nervously at the book she had been reading. Mrs. Smythe smiled as she caught a glimpse at the title, Sexual Situations for the Seductive Secretary.

Sally's pretty face was partly hidden by a pair of large, black-rimmed glasses. She was short and slender, but nature had given her more than ample charms. She was fair competition for the two in a diminutive sort of way.

"Just make yourselves comfortable, girls," Mrs. Smythe said coldly. "You'll be seen one at a time." The older woman did not approve of Mr. Johnstone's method of choosing her successor.

The three girls sat side-by-side on an orange-colored leather couch against the wall. Each crossed her right leg over the left, revealing the soft flesh over the tops of their stockings.

A few minutes later, Gloria Hale, the blonde, was called into Mr. Johnstone's office. Gloria was out in 15 minutes. Janice Crawford was next and she emerged in about 20 minutes. Sally stayed longer, almost a half hour. Finally, she too emerged from the inner office and Mrs. Smythe asked the three of them to wait for Mr. Johnstone's decision.

The girls started to whisper among themselves about what had happened during their interviews. Sally, the last girl, offered a few words but then fell silent as the other two compared notes.

"He really has roving eyes," said Gloria. "He practically undressed me with them."

"Eyes, hell," said Janice. "He had roving hands, too. Do you girls know what he did?"

"No," said Gloria anxiously while Sally shook her head from side to side.

"He patted my derriere. He wanted something all right, but that lecherous-looking creep didn't get

EVERY DETAIL VISIBLE • NOTHING CENSORED • INCLUDES DOZENS OF FULL COLOR PHOTOS THE PHOTOGRAPHIC MARRIAGE MANUAL

The PHOTOGRAPHIC MARRIAGE MANUAL is the most richly illustrated book about the art of physical love ever published!!! Its 432 pages are illustrated with over 1200 completely uncensored photographs of beautiful naked men and women engaged in every aspect of foreplay and intercourse. Over 200 coital positions are frankly and openly photographed and explained in simple text. Nothing is omitted or censored. The photos show every known practice of love making including oral love, anal love, object love and many others which have always excited the curiosity and interest of those wishing to enrich their sex lives. Dozens of these close-up, detailed and frank photos are in full, living color.

The PHOTOGRAPHIC MARRIAGE MANUAL does away with all taboos and misconceptions, and its text and its over 1200 completely revealing and candid photographs openly discuss and illustrate each and every way in which the human body can be sexually aroused and gratified.

DISCOVER MANY COMPLETELY NEW WAYS OF MAKING LOVE

- You will find in it new ways of stirring passions and of fulfilling them completely.
- You will gain new strength and be able to give your sex partner much more satisfaction in intercourse.
- Sexual stamina such as you've always wanted will be yours.
- And when you master these new arousal methods, new intercourse positions and new techniques of sex, your reward will be total enjoyment, total stimulation and complete sexual involvement for you and your mate.

IN THE PHOTOGRAPHIC MARRIAGE MANUAL YOU WILL...

- Watch a woman instruct her lover in ways which stimulate her, excite her and enable her to reach fulfillment time after time...without fatiguing him.
- Study ways in which a woman can stimulate every part of a man's body. See her excite him with her tongue...see her bring him to new heights of passion.
- See common household objects used as aids in love making.
- Learn how to use creams, ointments, salves and perfumes to heighten and intensify your love making.
- See a woman during her most secret moments...as she explores every part of her own body.
- Learn how to enjoy your sex partner each and every time.
- Learn how to overcome seeming feminine resistance.
- See every known practice of love making fully described and photographed.

We are so sure that its clear and helpful text and its over 1200 photographs will help you and your sex partner to gain an enriched, fulfilled and gratifying sex life that we want you to try it at our own risk. No Need To Miss Out On The Fun of Private Movies Now at This Low Price

Here is a projector which, though precision-engineered and sturdily built for long use, is so reasonably-priced that everyone can now enjoy the thrills of showing home movies or standard 8 mm commercial movies. And it's so easy to operate that even a child can learn to use it quickly. Its double lens system and smooth operation give amazing performance. And — because it so compact, you can take it with you anywhere and show your home movies to friends or relatives. (It comes in its own carrying case with handle. Closes completely for easy portability.) No need to unwind electric cord and hunt for an outlet either — because it has no cord. The batteries (available anywhere) are completely stored in the base — and they're ready at the flip of a switch. This quick-focusing automatic Projector shows 8mm color or black-and-white film. If you wish to stop it at a particular frame, you can do so. Speed control lets you speed up film or slow down the action for enjoyment of every detail. (Batteries not included).

Try It For 10 Days On Our Money-Back Guarantee! So sure are we that you will be delighted with this versatile Projector, that we invite you to try it for 10 days and then, if you don't agree that it's a wonderful buy, return it to us and we'll refund the purchase price — with no questions asked. near me," Janice said, eyes ablaze.

"The way he stood over me, I knew he was looking down the front of my blouse," Gloria, the blonde, added. "I teased him a bit and leaned over, and he actually moaned. I almost busted my buttons trying to keep from laughing in his stupid face."

"Did you notice the prophylactic that was in the open drawer of his desk?" Gloria asked, her giggling becoming louder.

"Yes, I saw it," the redhaired Janice answered. "And do you know what I did?"

Gloria and Sally shook their heads no.

"Well," Janice whispered, "when he wasn't looking, I put a hole in it with my hairpin. That'll show him."

Gloria and Janice were laughing hysterically when they heard the thud. It was Sally. She had fainted and was lying on the floor. The two, looking at each other, rose from their seats and headed for the door.

"Wait," Mrs. Smythe shouted at them. "Don't you girls want to know who gets the job?"

"We know," they answered, giggling down the hall. ☐

It was too much for Tom. He leaped up and grabbed Harry's collar. "You bastard," he shouted. Then he decked Harry with a fast right hand to the mouth. The other men pulled Tom back and kept him from inflicting more punishment on the stunned Harry, lying on the floor rubbing his face. Tom looked at Marge. She stared at him, her eyes glassy, as she murmured, "wonderful . . . so wonderful . . ."

Tow elbowed past a gawking Shirley, picked Marge up, hoisted her over his shoulder and without a word, took her out to the car.

They were home now. Marge was lying on the bed. She opened her eyes and looked at her husband rip his tie off angrily.

"Dirty bastards, both of them," he snarled. He touched her face lightly.

"Are we home?"

"We're home. Feel okay?"

"Yes . . . but what happened?"

He touched her shoulder and brought a finger down to her breast. "I'm glad we're home, Tom."

"Me, too." He kissed her lightly, and began toying with the snaps on her dress. "Everything's all right, love."

His lips touched hers. She felt a warm glow as she felt his breath come faster. She responded, her tongue flicking at him, light and feathery. Now he was taking her clothes off, nibbling a breast . . . exploring a body he had almost forgotten.

He stood up at the foot of the bed and gazed at her nakedness. He slid her to the edge of the bed. Her legs went up, feet resting on his shoulders. She thrilled at his fierce look of love as she raised her pelvis toward him.

Oh . . . a groan, a sigh . . . thoughts of love raced through her.

Could she ever tell him Harry was a rotten hypnotist? Could she ever explain how she was thrilled when she aroused her husband by her lewd actions while lying on the Page's living room floor pretending to be hypnotized?

She trembled as the joyous rhythms of love increased in tempo and vigor. Could she ever reveal how it was a devious plan to re-ignite the spark of passion that was dying out? Maybe . . . some day. But now all she could say was . . . "wonderful . . . Oh, Tom . . . wonderful . . . so wonderful . . ."

Sex And Pornography In The Movies

OVER 150 PHOTOS

ONLY $4.95

OVER 150 UNCENSORED PHOTOGRAPHS! EXPLICIT TEXT!

"SEX AND PORNOGRAPHY IN THE MOVIES"

by Richard Arlen

The most definitive and authoritative study on the subject available anywhere. You'll see more than 150 uncensored photographs from the most torrid films of the century, along with informative text which provides an enlightening social commentary. You'll see actual film stills which depict scenes of sexual intercourse and other torrid sexual activities shown on movie screens across the country, as well as prime examples taken from pornographic "stag films" discreetly viewed in private homes.

You may be shocked by the scenes that Jean Harlow - Marlene Dietrich - Claudette Colbert - Hedy Lamarr - Rita Hayworth - Jane Russell - Anna Magnani - Brigitte Bardot - Raquel Welch - Sophia Loren played before they became famous stars . . . but, you'll know why they derived the label "sex goddess." An invaluable addition to the library of film buffs, social historians, observers and participants of the sexual revolution.

Gentlemen: Enclosed find $4.95 in full payment for "Sex & Pornography In The Movies." I certify with my signature below that I am over 21 years of age and hereby request future adult offerings until I notify you in writing to the contrary. (SORRY, NO COD'S)
